500 TAKEN OFF GROUNDED SHIP

Hunt 4 More Bodies In Paris 'Villa of Death'

POLICE FEAR GANG KLLED 2ND AMERICAN

Seek to Link Fate of Three More Women, Man With Grim 'Murder Syndicate.'

'LEADER', GIRL GIVE UP

'Expert Killer' Relates How He Strangled U. S. Dancer With Napkin.

PARIS—(AP)—Police today ordered a whole half acre of wooded ground around the "death" villa at St. Cloud spaded up in search for four more possible victims of Eugene Weidmann, confessed slayer of the American dancer, Jean De Koven, and four men.

They expressed fears that a second American, an unidentified man, might have been snared in the web of a murder for profit syndicate of which Weidmann said he was the expert in killing, and they sought light on three women whose identities and fate still are a mystery.

Find Women's Clothing.

Workmen dug in the grounds of the villa where Miss De Koven's body was found Thursday to determine whether the three women, known only as "Jeannine," "Caroline" and "Josephine," also had been killed and buried there.

The names or monograms of the three were found embroidered on handkerchiefs, clothing and even letters and postcards discovered in Weidmann's lair.

Four valises of women's effects were found in the villa. Police worked on the belief that one of the victims was a blond seen frequently in the company of the syndicate. No clue to her whereabouts has been found.

Two men and a woman sought as members of the syndicate surrendered to the police yesterday for questioning, and a charge of complicity of murder was placed against Roger Million, supposed head of the group, and his woman companion, Collette Tricot. Jean Le Blanc was held on an open charge.

Admits Ransom Note.

Collette Tricot, who police said was Million's mistress, disclosed to questioners that she had a husband working in an automobile factory and an eight-year-old son.

Million, according to a police account of his questioning today, admitted he had given a letter demanding $500 dollars ransom for the release of Miss De Koven to a chauffeur to be delivered to Ida Sackheim, the Brooklyn, N. Y.,

CO-EDS CAN'T

MADISON, Wis —(U.P.)— University of Wisconsin art students may have nude models but not nude co-ed models, Miss Jeanne Smith, New York music student, learned today.

Revelation that Miss Smith was posing in the all-together for students in Life classes caused a brief furore on the university campus.

Prof. William H. Varnum, head of the department, told Miss Smith she may model any time she wants to—if she wears clothes.

"I ordered her name stricken from the list of models," he said, "not because we don't use nude models but because we have a rule against employing female students in such a way."

School authorities described the whole situation as a mistake. They believed she was only a model and not a co-ed, too, they said.

Mercury at New Low as Relief Nears

Bellville Area Reports 5 Below; Week-End to Be Warmer.

Temperature readings as low as five below zero, reported unofficially in the Bellville area this morning, set a new low mark for the season in Richland county as forecasters predicted relief by tomorrow from the four-day record cold wave. Deaths mounted to 110 in the nation as winter sprtad suffering over the entire country.

The official reading in Mansfield was three above zero at 6 a. m. today, one degree colder than the season's previous low mark recorded Thursday morning. With a light snow falling the temperature climbed rapidly during the morning, however, and stood at 18 above at 11:30 a. m., Observer Otto Sprunger reported.

Despite overcast skies, which threatened more snow today, the state weather forecast promised fair and slightly warmer tonight and Sunday, with the possibility of unsettled weather by late Sunday.

One of Coldest Days.

With the average reading at 10.5 degrees, Friday was one of the coldest December days in years in Mansfield. The mercury rose no higher than 18 degrees during the day even with a bright sun shining, and by early evening the temperature had dropped to around the 10-degree mark. The day's average was just 19 degrees below normal, 29.5.

Relief from the cold will be short-lived, according to C. A. Donnell, U. S. government forecaster, who said another mass of polar air was on its way from northwestern Canada into the United States. The new blast probably will reach the midwestern states before the middle of next week, he predicted.

Apparently centered in the Great Lakes and Ohio valley areas, the cold wave relinquished its grasp on the regions west of the Mississippi river today and the mercury rose above zero in many sections for the first time since Tuesday. The lowest official reading in the midwest was two below zero at Devils Lake, N. D.

King Winter Clamps Down Over Nation, Snarls Traffic

Blankety-blank!&!*—in Cleveland.

"Achoo!" This Cleveland lad, Lester Nehamkin, can't take it, eh?

Mansfield battled this week colder weather than it has had for 10 years for the same season of the year, but there were other places where the snowfall was much heavier than here. At Buffalo, the worst December snow in the city's history completely paralyzed traffic. At Welland, across the Canadian border, things were just as bad. Cleveland had a little more snow and cold than is usual for so early in December too, and one of its citizens got a cold out of it, while another had to "wind up" his car when the starter wouldn't turn the cold motor over.

SAVED WHILE WAVES POUND LUXURY LINER

President Hoover, $8,000,000 U. S. Vessel, Strikes Reef In Pacific Waters.

TRANSFERRED TO ISLAND

Passengers Suffering From Exposure After 30-Mile Trip in Rescue Boats.

MANILA—(UP)—All 500 passengers of the $8,000,000 liner President Hoover, fast aground on a sunken reef off the coast of Formosa, have been safely landed on Hoishoto island, one of the Formosa group, radio reports from the scene said today.

The Dollar line offices in Hong Kong announced that Dr. Kenneth Park, the Hoover's physician, had set up an emergency hospital ashore to take care of all passengers who were landed by ships and small boats. Whether any passengers had been injured was not known, but it was assumed that some were suffering from exposure

Rushing to Aid.

The President Hoover's sister ship, the President McKinley, racing to the scene under full steam, was expected to arrive at dusk. Salvage tugs proceeding from Hong Kong will arrive later. It was believed the ship's cargo would have to be jettisoned before she could be refloated.

The advices gave no details, but indicated that heavy seas made difficult the transferring of the passengers and the efforts of naval and salvage vessels to refloat the 33,800-ton Dollar liner which figured in the news when she was bombed by Chinese planes off Shanghai early in the Sino-Japanese war.

The liner was aground about 30 miles off Formosa, the chief island of the group. One of her last messages asked for all possible salvage aid. Presumably her crew of 300 remained aboard. Her exact number of passengers was 503.

Capt. George Yardley, commander of the liner, reported there was no immediate danger.

The German steamer Preussen was standing by.

No storms were reported in the area. It was assumed that the boiling seas was caused by the natural swell of the sea over the reef.

Refloating Attempts Fail.

Four more ships, including two U. S. destroyers, were speeding to the scene.

Domei, Japanese news agency, reported from Taikoku that tugs and salvage boats were trying to refloat the liner but were having difficulty because of the seas. Some water was reported in the liner's hold.

A radio message from Capt. Yardley said: "Vessel aground

REACH ACCORD ON OLD TAX BILL

City and County Agree on Plan, Avert $5,000 Penalty For Delinquency.

City officials had before them today a plan for the settlement of a 17-year-old tax bill owed the county, affected yesterday with county commissioners that not only averted a $5,000 penalty but trimmed the debt to approximately $3.000.

The plan for payment of the tax debt was generally accepted by city and county officials and council's finance committee yesterday and will be presented to council for approval at a special meeting called by Mayor Earl A. McFarland for Dec. 21.

The plan calls for the settlement in full by the county of the money it owes the city, leaving the city with a debt of $2,925.35. The latter will be deducted from the yearly tax settlement due the city in 10 annual payments of $292.55.

Of the $4,520.95 that the city owes the county on assessments, $223 88 is chargeable to the water works department and the balance

Police 'Kick In' With $50 Check For Yule Baskets

One of the workers at the office of the Community Christmas Fund office fanned herself with a $50 check this morning.

The check was from the Mansfield police department, and the fanning was necessary because—well, because a $50 check is always a shock.

The lads of the police department voted the money from their recreation fund, which they built up themselves through the year, as their contribution to the Christmas basket fund. They'll help in many other ways too. They are buying tickets to the midnight show, Dec. 18, loaning uniforms to the "actors," and some of them will give their services the night of the show.

Other checks in smaller amounts are coming to Community Christmas headquarters, some contributions to the general fund, and others with requests that certain families be remembered.

Help from a new quarter was offered— and accepted— today. Promotor Tim Nolan said that all women and children will be admitted to his wrestling bouts at the armory Monday nights—Dec. 13 and 20—free upon presentation of a can of food for the Christmas baskets.

Seminary To Send Yule Cheer To Youth With Broken Back

Seminarians of the Hamma Divinity school at Wittenberg college, Springfield, O., will intermingle Christmas cheer with the solemnity of the annual celebration of the Nativity next Wednesday, when they pay tribute to their fellow classmate, Michael Ondov, 24, of Lakewood, who is confined to the Mansfield General hospital with a broken back

The occasion is the annual Christmas service of the school, and will be held at 10 a. m. in the chapel.

By a vote of the students, the entire special offering at the Christmas service will be sent to their stricken classmate as a Christmas gift to help his father and sister with the mounting hospitalization costs. Weekly offerings collected in the little chapel will also be added to the special offering for Ondov who was critically hurt in an auto accident near Hayesville early in November.

Ondov and six fellow students were injured Nov. 5 en route to their homes in and near Cleveland when their car overturned. Ondov received five blood transfusions in the winning fight to save his life. Fellow seminarians contributed most of the blood. His condition was reported as good by hospital attaches today.

HOOVER OUT, TOO

G.O.P. Considers Both Him And Landon 'Out of Picture.'

WASHINGTON —(AP)—Republican leaders counted both Alf M. Landon and Herbert Hoover out of the 1940 presidential picture today.

Although in many quarters Landon's emphatic elimination of himself was regarded as a challenge to Hoover to do the same, most Republican spokesmen did not expect the former president to respond.

They were inclined to accept as final his recent statement that "I do not want any public office." Senator McNary of Oregon, Republican leader of the senate, was among the congressmen who took this view of the situation.

"Since Mr. Hoover and Mr. Landon have taken themselves out of the race," McNary said, "we must look for new leadership."

Two Matinees Add 1,000 More Cans Of Food For Needy

Another thousand cans of fruit and vegetables were added today to the growing store from which Community Christmas baskets will be filled. A thousand youngsters attended can matinees this morning at the Ritz and Majestic theaters.

All of them brought contributions that will gladden some less fortunate youngster's Christmas. One very small boy lugged in a half gallon of home preserved peaches, that will go into the basket of some family with eight or more children.

Today's matinee brought the entire store of canned goods to more than 2,000 cans, as 1,000 were collected at last Saturday's matinee at the Madison.

The final can matinee will be staged next Saturday at the Ohio theater.

JAM BROKEN BY FARM BILL O.K.

House Begins Debate on Wage And Hour Bill; Senate to Complete Program Soon.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— House passage of crop control legislation by a 267 to 130 vote gave administration forces today their first effective lever for breaking up the legislative jam which has blocked President Roosevelt's special session program.

Senator Barkley, Democratic leader, predicted the senate would approve early next week a farm bill differing from the house measure in only two respects. The degree of compulsion and the methods of aiding farmers financially when prices are depressed.

The house meanwhile will begin consideration Monday of the wage-hour bill, which has aroused even greater controversy than the farm program.

When that is out of the way, its chieftains hope there will be time to pass the president's bill to stimulate residential building

Congressman William A. Ashbrook of the 17th district which includes Richland county was among the 130 house members who voted against the crop control legislation.

Robber Suspect's $5 Tips To Taxi Drivers Lead To Arrest

CLEVELAND —(AP)— Sudden affluence and ill-timed generosity—in the form of $5 tips to taxi cab drivers—lodged a robber suspect in a suburban jail cell today.

Detectives seized him last night on information from three drivers, each of whom received a $5 note from his liberal fare. He was not charged immediately pending further investigation.

In fact, one of the cabmen unwittingly aided in the robbery—a midafternoon revolver holdup of the Morse-Crable Coal company's East Cleveland office. President Charles G. Crable said the robber obtained $200 in cash and checks.

Driver No. 1 told police the man asked him to wait near the company's office. A few minutes later his fare emerged, the driver said, and instructed him to "Get the hell out of here as fast as you can." On Cleveland's East Side, the man paid his fare, casually tipped the driver $5 and entered a beer parlor.

Driver No. 2 related that he took the man to another part of the city and also was rewarded with a $5 tip

Driver No. 3 said he transported the man to the East Side night club district—and was enriched by a $5 gratuity.

East Cleveland officers, searching this area, came upon a man of the gunman's description—no overcoat, blue suit, small black mustache—huddled in a doorway.

Lieut. Thomas G. O.Brien said his pockets yielded $163 in cash and checks made out to the coal company. O'Brien said the man confessed.

HUNDREDS FLEE

California Dam Breaks, Water Pours Into City.

ALTURAS, Cal. —(U.P.)— The Pine creek reservoir dam, a quarter mile above Alturas, gave way today and sent thousands of gallons of water pouring into the city.

Business streets were turned into raging torrents. Buildings were undermined and residences washed out.

First reports did not tell of any deaths but hundreds of lives were in danger.

Rescue crews struggled to remove patients from the county hospital before the wave of water reached them.

The dam crumbled after torrential rains fed it for almost 36 hours.

Tygers to Share Plaudits With Neighboring Teams

All the praise of Mansfield football fans isn't going to be heaped on Mansfield High's Tygers at The News-Journal's "Victory banquet" next Wednesday night.

Coaches and captains of seven Mid-State league teams, will be guests at the banquet, and three old N. C. O. rivals will also be represented at the banquet, to be held Wednesday night at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

The N. C. O. schols are Shelby, Ashland and Galion. Although out of the conference, Mansfield maintained grid relations with Shelby and Ashland, and Galion was the 1937 N. C. O. champion.

Mansfield played none of the Mid-State teams, but all of the schools in the loop are near Mansfield, and their teams have had considerable following in and near the city. Mid-State coaches and captains will be present from Madison, Bellville, Butler, Fredericktown, Mt. Gilead, Danville and Loudonville.

And here's a reminder to fans—there are only three more days left in which to get tickets for the banquet and hear Wilbur F. (Pete) Henry, all-time All-America and native son of Mansfield, tell of his footbal experiences.

BRADENTON, Fla.—(U.P.)—Mrs. Walter Lippman was awarded a divorce on grounds of mental cruelty from her New York columnist husband yesterday by Circuit Judge George W. Whitehurst.

CAPTURE PORT

Japs, Storming Nanking, Cut Off Chinese Escape.

SHANGHAI—(AP)—While Japanese troops still pounded Nanking's walls and five gates tonight, another Japanese column captured the important river port, Wuhu, 60 miles up the Yangtze from the capital.

Japanese army commanders, who reported the capture of Wuhu, said occupation of the city would make impossible a Chinese retreat from Nanking along the south bank of the Yangtze.

They said it also would put Japan's forces in an advantageous position for a march on Hankow whenever a campaign were ordered against the city, farther up the Yangtze, where the Chinese have shifted their seat of government.

Capture of Wuhu came while Japanese infantry, charging behind lines of tanks, were storming Nanking in a general attack.

MOTHERS' CLUBS HOLD PATROL DINNER, PARTY

Fifth Street School Group Hears Dr. Anspach Speak; Newman Organization Celebrates Birthdays of Members.

MOTHERS' CLUB activities seem to be in the foreground at present with the Fifth Street school group honoring members of the boys' patrol at a dinner last night and members of the Newman school group celebrating birthdays.

Following the covered-dish dinner which was served at the North Lake park pavilion to about 125 persons, Miss Margaret Black led members, patrol boys, and guests at the Fifth Street School affair in group singing. Frend Boals, organizer of the Mansfield troop, spoke on the importance of the patrol work and explained what it means to a boy to participate.

Next the boys gave their pledge, which preceded the speech by Dr. Charles L. Anspach, Ashland college, who spoke on "Patrol Boys' Pledge of Duty." His subject emphasized the value of the movement and the lives saved through the patrol. He compared the former indifferent way of supervising school children to the present, safe method.

Mrs. O. M. Adams, president of the organization, spoke and conveyed her appreciation to the organization as a whole. Mrs. David Boals, president of the Mansfield P. T. A. council, and Mrs. I. W. Basinger, state membership chairman, were guests of the club.

Boys in the patrol gave Glen Robinson, principal, and Mr. Boals gifts of appreciation and the Mothers' club gave all the patrol boys gifts of flash-lights. Mrs. Chester Troxell, West Fifth street, was the winner in the drawing.

The next meeting will be announced at a later date

Elect Officers Of Church Group For Second Term

All the officers of the Ladies' Guild of the Mayflower Congregational church were re-elected yesterday at the meeting at the home of Mrs. Sadie Adams, 83 Johns street. Mrs. Adams, who is president, was re-named.

The other officers are: Mrs. Ada Lurz, vice president; Mrs. George Brooks, second vice president; Miss Grace Finical, secretary, and floral chairman; Mrs. C. A. Cole, associate secretary, and Mrs. F. B. Poling, treasurer.

Mrs. Albert Frank was in charge of the Christmas program which included readings by Mrs. Emil Aderman, Miss Finical, Mrs. Adams, Mrs. Poling, and Mrs. Charles Swank. Mrs. Cole will be hostess to the group Jan. 13.

Mr., Mrs. Etzel Guests At Reception Friday

Mr. and Mrs. John Etzel, 55 Chilton avenue, entertained last night at a reception at the German hall in honor of their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Etzel. Mrs. Etzel is the former Miss Ruth Ward, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jason Ward.

Mr. and Mrs. Etzel were married Dec. 2 at Greenup, Ky. They were at home in Mansfield at 122 East Park avenue.

HAVE CHRISTMAS PROGRAM.

Mrs. William Selby, Superior street, was hostess Thursday to members of the Sans Pareil club when they met for a Christmas party. Mrs Harold Lentz, Ashland, and Mrs. Delbert Pittinger were guests of the organization for the program of stories and poems. Mrs. Harold White, 32 Bartley avenue, will be hostess at a dinner meeting of the club Jan. 13.

Handling Glass.

Always use a dry cloth in handling hot glass cooking utensils. If a damp cloth is used the glass is likely to crack. When a glass dish boils dry, allow it to cool before soaking it and then use warm—not hot—water and a cleansing powder.

Shunning Fashion Pitfalls Points Path To Smartness

..Editor's Note: This is the second in a series of three articles on fashion and style to appear in this paper. The third will be offered at a later date.

* * *

By ADELAIDE KERR
AP Fashion Editor

NEW YORK—Shunning the pitfalls of fashion is essential to true chic. The road to the goal of smartness is lined with traps from which you must steer clear, if you wish to be well dressed.

These are the blunders which you must avoid:

1. Buying frocks and hats which do not "belong" to your figure or face and which put a damper on your personality and skin.
2. Acquiring a hodge-podge of clothes which do not blend in a coherent wardrobe and which leave you always with "nothing to wear."
3. Failure to give enough time to your dressmaker or alteration woman to insure a good fit.
4. Spending more money than you can afford.

Never slavishly follow the mode unless the mode becomes you. Make your clothes hide your poor points and enhance your good ones. Don't try to cram yourself into this season's concave diaphragm dresses if your midriff bulges. And don't wear very short skirts if you are short yourself or insist upon off-the-face hats if your nose is large.

Don't buy any color—no matter how new and smart—unless it flatters your skin tone. Avoid green if you are sallow, red if you are florid, gray, if you are pale.

Don't invest in a single hat, dress or coat unless you know exactly where you are going to wear them. The clothes which hang in your closet do you no good.

Don't expect your clothes to look well, no matter how much you paid for them, unless they are carefully fitted. Don't forget that you have a back and that others see it if you do not.

Preliminary Surveys.

Don't always accept the word of your saleswoman as gospel and follow it blindly. Her business is to sell.

Don't spend money on expensive fantasies which will last only a fashion minute unless you are rich as Croesus and can afford to throw them away when their day is done. Get your frivolities at little cost.

Much of the work you must do to shun those pitfalls begins before you shop. It starts with a thorough survey of yourself. Get out some recent snapshots (taken when you weren't on guard) to see what is wrong with your figure and posture. Then study yourself in the mirror under a far from flattering light. Something is sure to be wrong. Something is sure to be right.

See yourself as you are so that no saleswoman's "Madame has a charming figure," can deceive you about those too-wide shoulders and trap you into buying a dress with epaulets. Or remember your slender curving waist and look for a frock to reveal it.

Study Old Wardrobe.

When you are sure you know yourself, think where you are going this winter—shopping, to the movies dancing and decide what you need. (If you spend week-ends in the country, for instance, you need a smart tweed topcoat and not all the mink in the world will take its place.)

Now survey the wardrobe you already have. Save what is good and will answer your needs and put aside the rest. Make a list of what you must buy and hold it firmly in your head.

Then go shopping once without buying a single thing, to get the "feel" of the mode, its new lines and colors. Think it over away from high pressure salesmanship. Choose a basic color (black, gray or brown) and make up your mind to stick to it.

Then buy. Generally it's a good idea to get your coat first dresses next; hats, accessories and shoes last. Remember your plan. Don't come walking home with a glittering evening bag which you will use a half dozen times bought with the money you meant to pay for a dress you could have worn all winter.

Piano Students Present Recital Friday Evening

Pupils of Mrs. Marie Porterfield were presented last night in a recital given before 5 guests at the studio at 350 Park avenue west. The performers, ranging in age from beginners to those of the sixth grade, offered solos and duets which were announced by Marilee Sword. George Porterfield assisted with two violin selections.

Mr., Mrs. Benninghoff Celebrate Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Beninghoff, 131 Johns avenue, will celebrate their fiftieth wedding anniversary Tuesday, Dec. 14, with an open house and reception at their home during the afternoon and evening. Mr. and Mrs. Beninghoff were married here 50 years ago by Rev. H. L. Wiles, pastor of the First Lutheran church.

They were the parents of four daughters. Mrs. S. A. Calhoun, the eldest, died in 1934. The others are Mrs. C. D Snyder, Mrs. R. O. Stull, both ministers of the Christian and Mission Alliance, and Mrs. L. E. Coffey, who is an ordained minister of the Baptist faith. Mrs. Coffey is the wife of Police Chief Coffey, Shelby.

MRS. PHELPS HONORS SUZANN HARTENFELS

Buffet Supper Given for Christmas Eve Bride—Mrs. Edward Fatkins Entertained at Wedding Shower.

AS CHRISTMAS EVE approaches, the date set for the wedding of Miss Suzann Hartenfels and Earl Herrick, the number of parties, showers, and social events for the bride-to-be are on the increase. Following the bridge-shower which was given for Miss Hartenfels by Miss Josephine Henness and Miss Dorothy Yauger Thursday night, Mrs. H. H. Phelps, 379 Sherman place, gave a buffet supper for her last night.

Twelve guests were seated at small tables for the serving of the supper. Decorations were white pompons and red tapers. When the personal gifts were presented to the bride-to-be a tiny Christmas tree centered the table.

Mrs. Charles Campbell gave Miss Hartenfels a wedding gift of an Italian linen luncheon set. Miss Rosemary Ferguson, Ashland, is entertaining this afternoon at her home with a tea and another party for Monday evening has been announced.

* * *

Mrs. Edward Fatkins, the former Inga Jesson, was honored at a wedding shower given at the home of Miss Emily Cox, 388 West Third street, recently. Miss Mary Elizabeth Miller was the associate hostess.

Bridge was played during the evening with prizes being awarded to Miss Doris Goodenough and Mrs. Robert F. Glessner. Refreshments were served at a table centered by the traditional wedding cake.

Gifts for the recent bride were concealed in an artificial cake. The hostesses presented Mrs. Fatkins with a coffee table. There will be several more affairs following Christmas it was announced.

Last Pre-Nuptial Party Given For Donna Hallack

Closing the series of pre-nuptial parties given to honor Miss Donna Hallack, Mrs. Earl Hartley, sister of the bride-groom, and Mrs. Richard Ropp, sister of the bride, entertained last night at a shower at the home of Mrs. Hartley, 35 Elmwood avenue.

A color scheme of green and white was carried out in the decorations, and the friends attending the shower gave Miss Hallack a combined gift. Prizes in the contests were won by Mrs. H. K. Day and Mrs. Oscar Shoup.

Miss Hallack is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Hallack, Bowman street. She will become the bride of Russell Bolesky, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Bolesky, Linden road. The ceremony will be performed at 8 p. m. Dec. 16, at the Central Methodist church with Rev. P. E. Hollingshead officiating.

SPORTS ARE FAVORITES

Meet Westinghouse in Top Game in City League Monday Night.

Basketball representatives of the Yuncker Sports rule as pre-season favorites in the City Class A league race which gets under way Monday night with a two-game program at Senior high school.

The Sports, which recently made an impressive debut by trouncing the strong Ohio State Reformatory aggregation, will present a formidable lineup Monday when they tangle with the Westinghouse Electric combine in the feature attraction at 8:30.

Two new entries, the Ira D. Ling Canzols and Elks clubs, will lift the lid with an opening game at 7:30. Both teams have an impressive roster, but their strength as a unit is to be tested.

In the Yuncker lineup will be lanky Tom Farrell, Al Stickler and Harold Hayfer, all City league veterans and members of last year's championship Dominion Electric club. Dominion has no entry in the loop.

Other members of the outfit are Jack Miner, veteran city league player, Bob Bogantz, all-county guard on Ontario's Richland county league championship team last year, and Munster, a newcomer.

Shelby Loses Another Game

Suffers 32-20 Setback in Tilt With Bellevue.

SHELBY—Shelby high's North Central Ohio conference quintet suffered its second straight setback of the season here last night, bowing to Bellevue, 32 to 20, in a non-league tilt.

The rangy Bellevue outfit hopped into the lead in the opening frame and was never headed. The invaders iced the game with a 10-point spurt in the final chapter while they were holding the Whippets to three.

Paced by Barnard, lanky center, who scored 10 points, Bellefue grabbed a slim 5-4 lead in the opening frame and at the half had increased it to a 16-7. As play was resumed in the fourth period, the visitors were ahead 22-17. Hazelwood was high for the losers with six points

SOHIOANS OPEN SEASON

Play Shelby Cycle Club at Ontario High Tonight.

The Henry Sohioans open their basketball season tonight by entertaining the Shelby Cycle company team at Ontario high. The proceeds of the Sohians' games this year will be turned over to the school. In the preliminary attraction at 7:30 the Ontario Ex-Highs tackle the Shelby Ex-Highs.

Elmer Dials Plays Stellar Ball as Mansfield High Topples Favored Visitors In Rough Game on Home Hardwood.

By OSCAR RUHL, News-Journal Sports Editor.

EMPLOYING speed and a fast passing game to offset the height of the visitors, Coach Russ Murphy's Tygers of Mansfield high school came through with a 23 to 21 victory over the favored Columbus South Bulldogs for their first triumph in two games before a few less than 1,000 spectators on the home court last night.

With Elmer Dials obtaining at least half of the rebounds, the Men of Murphy made an impressive showing in the rough and tumble battle in which the score changed hands five times.

In addition to holding his own on the rebounds from the taller McLain, who towered over the Tyger center by several inches, Dials led the Mansfielders in scoring with eight points.

Little Tommy Scott contributed seven points to play an important part in the thrill-packed struggle.

Rally In Second Half.

The Tygers, who dropped a last-minute decision to Akron Kenmore in their opener last week, did not have an easy time of it by any means, and it was necessary for them to rally in the second half to take the Bulldogs into camp.

Mansfield experienced another bad second period after gaining an early advantage, but last night they were able to come back to eke out a hard-earned decision.

The passing of the Tygers was an important factor in clinching the victory. In the last five minutes of play, Mansfield controlled the ball with a stalling game which the invaders were unable to break up. South had possession of the ball only twice in the final minutes, once on an out-of-bounds and the other time on a jump ball.

Mansfield gained an early lead the same as last week, but again it failed to hold the advantage. Although unable to score from the field until six minutes had elapsed, the Murphymen held a 6 to 1 advantage at the completion of the initial period.

Trail at Half.

In the second period, South limited the Tygers to three points while tallying 11, and it was in front by a 12 to 9 margin at the intermission.

The lead changed hands twice in the third quarter, but a last-second bucket by Jack Lyons enabled the Tygers to hold an 18 to 17 edge going into the final chukker.

Scott's basket lengthened the lead to 20 to 17 in the first minute of the fourth period, but McLain was fouled while slapping in a basket and he added the free throw to knot the count 20-all.

Hallabrin sunk a toss from the charity line to give Mansfield a lead it never relinquished. Dials added two more free tosses a minute later to put the game on ice for the Tygers, who stalled the rest of the way as the excited crowd stood on its feet as the Bulldogs made a desperate but futile attempt to gain possession of the spheroid.

Wins on Foul Line.

Both clubs tallied seven baskets, but Mansfield won the game on the free throw line, converting nine of their 14 throws. South made seven of its 15 shots from the charity line good

With Dials more than holding his own with the bigger McLain, the Tygers showed considerable improvement over their performance of last week, and, despite their lack of size ,they should make it difficult for the rest of their foes.

Murphy used nine players in last night's tussle, but the combination consisting of Lewis, Scott, Dials, Lyons and Hallabrin saw most of the service, and it is likely that this is the lineup Murphy will use in the immediate future.

Reserves Whipped By Shelby Ex-Hys.

THOUGH holding their own until the final minutes, the Mansfield high school reserves bowed to the Shelby Ex-Hys, 30 to 25, in the preliminary game.

The junior Tygers trailed 14 to 9 at the half, but came back strong in the third and fourth periods. However, the nearest they came to overtaking the more experienced and rangier Bordertown athletes was three points.

Herpich led the Mansfielders with 10 points, while Gus Culbertson, former Shelby high scoring sensation, tallied nine to pace the winners.

Snead Needs Only 11 Clubs to Pound Out a 67

CORAL GABLES, Fla.—(AP)—Sluggin' Sam Snead headed into the second round of the $10,000 Miami Biltmore open today with a two-stroke lead on the field, a four-under-par 67 to show for his opening round and a good word for the 14-club rule.

Snead's 67 left him two shots ahead of Johnny Revolta, former P. G. A. champion of Evanston, Ill.

Nolan, Quality Club Help Muster-Cheers

Promoter Tim Nolan and the Quality Athletic club will do their bit to assist the "Muster-Cheers" in putting over their annual Christmas program this year.

Announcement was made today by Nolan that the price of admission for women and children for the next two shows will be a can of fruit or vegetables. The cans will be turned over to the "Muster-Cheers" for distribution the day before Christmas.

Monday night's show at the Armory will be featured by the appearance of the Great Mephisto, former lightheavyweight champion of the world, who will meet handsome George Becker, the "German Bomber," in the headline match.

In the other two-fall-out-of-three match, Babe Kasoboski, Toronto, Ont., Polish boy, will meet Bob Blake of Columbus. A one-fall, 20-minute match will open the card.

Moose Match Tops Pin Sked

Lodge League Rivals Clash On Alleys Tonight.

There will be plenty of action on the polished lanes at the Meder bowling emporium this weekend.

Headlining tonight's program will be the first series between the two Mansfield entries in the Loose Traveling league. Both teams are title contenders, and the result of the match will have an important bearing on the race.

Incidentally, the Moose teams are the only bowling clubs in the city with mascots. Four-year-old Don Meder is the No. 2 team mascot, while "Gibby" Groscost serves in a like capacity for the No 1 club.

In other matches tonight, two Liederkranz teams will bowl foes from the Akron lodge and the Liederkranz regulars will meet the Q Billiards.

On unday afternoon, the Liederkranz club will be host to Sandusky in a Northern Ohio Traveling league match, while the Oldsmobiles travel to Findlay.

Butler Surprises Rams, Wins, 29-15

Knights Share County League Lead With Ontario, Victorious Over Lexington, 35 to 24; Lucas Topples Bellville.

By CHARLES MARTIN

THE KNIGHTS of Butler high retained a share of first place in the Richland county basketball league race today following their surprising 29 to 15 triumph over the Madison Rams last night on the Madison hardwood.

Coach M. L. Stearns' sharpshooters, victorious over Union in their initial circuit appearance last week, found the bucket with regularity to snatch a lead in the opening frame they never gave up.

Madison started the game with the reserves, but Coach Al Fendrich sent his regulars into the melee four minutes after the tilt got under way.

With little Kenny Miller leading the way, the Butlerites unleashed a scoring spree in the final chapter to ice the game.

The Rams, unable to find the basket, trailed 10 to 3 in the opening frame and 14 to 13 at the half.

The two quintets were unable to get going in the third stanza and the period ended with Butler holding a 16-14 advantage. And then the winners broke loose with their winning splurge. Madison scored only one point in the last period.

Bill Moritz garnered five points to lead the Rams, while Boals and Ward, with seven apiece, followed Miller in the Butler scoring column.

The Butler reserves won the prelim, 14 to 11.

Overflow Crowd Sees Ontario Triumph.

ONTARIO high chalked up its second Richland county league triumph last night by smothering the Minutemen of the Lexington high, 35 to 24, before an overflow crowd at Lexington.

The victory gave the defending champions a share of first place with Butler in the torrid race.

Coach Orville Kibler's athletes shot into a commanding lead in the opening frame and were never headed. Matt Hager, one of the two veterans returning from last year's brilliant quintet, led the scoring with 14 points.

Ontario led 14 to 15 in the first stanza, and increased its advantage to 23 to 7 at the half. As play was resumed in the final chapter, the winners held a 31 to 12 lead.

Fink, a promising newcomer, followed Hager in the scoring column with nine points, while France was high for the Minutemen with 11.

The Ontario seconds defeated the Lexington reserves, 14 to 11, in a overtime period in the prelim game.

Greulich Scores 26 Points In Win.

LUCAS high regained its winning stride in impressive fashion last night by walloping Bellville, 40 to 16, in a county league attraction at Bellville.

Tom Greulich, Luca's sharpshooter, was the main cog in his team's victory, accounting for 26 points.

Lucas, which last week suffered its first setback in three league games by bowing to Ontario, took the lead in the opening stanza and held it throughout.

The winners led 9 to 7 in the initial stanza and 19-12 at the half. The Lucas outfit broke loose with a scoring spree in the last two periods to account for 19 points while holding Bellville to four.

In the prelim, the Lucas reserves topped Bellville, 35 to 14.

BLAZE STRIKES ASHLAND HOME; DAMAGE $5,000

Firemen Hampered by Frozen Water Hydrants; Attic and Second Floor Ruined.

ASHLAND—Damage estimated at close to $5,000 was caused to the two story dwelling of John Brubaker on Pleasant street here Friday, when a fire believed to have been caused by a defective chimney, got out of control of Ashland firemen, as they struggled to thaw two frozen water hydrants.

The fire quickly outstripped the efforts of the owner to put it out, and after a 15-minute fight, he called the fire department.

By that time the entire roof was a mass of flames, and when firemen arrived, they could not check the flames effectively, having only one main hose to work with while others tried to thaw two frozen hydrants.

Most of the household goods in te lower floor were saved, but the entire attic and second floor was gutted beyond repair. The house was covered by insurance.

SEEKS $5,000 DAMAGES

ASHLAND—Recovery of $5,000 is asked in the damage suit of James Robertson of Perrysville vs. E. G. Buchsieb, Inc., of Columbus in common pleas court here. The sum is asked for injuries and damages said to have been sustained in an automobile accident west of Loudonville May 18, 1937.

The plaintiff charges Henry Coey, an employe of the defendant with responsibility.

GRANTED DIVORCE

ASHLAND—A decree of divorce was granted to J. L. Hancock from Emma Hancock in common pleas court here, after the latter was adjudged guilty of gross neglect of duty and extreme cruelty.

The plaintiff was given the custody of one minor child.

WILLARD — Jack Ward, nine-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Ward, who has been critically ill at Municipal hospital, is reported slightly improved by hospital attaches.

JUDGE SPEAKS

BUCYRUS—A review of Dr. Henry C. Link's "The Return to Religion" was presented by Probate Judge Constance R. Keller for the pleasure of the Bucyrus Teachers association, members of the board of education and wives, at the King's Daughters Chapter house Thursday night.

Christmas carols were sung by the group with Miss Virginia Wise at the piano.

DIES AT GALION

Nicholas Spurck, 74, To Be Buried Monday.

GALION—Nickolas Frederick Spurck, 74, of 660 West Church street, died Friday afternoon at 2:45 at his home. Complications caused his death after an illness of two months.

He was born Nov. 30, 1863 in Germany, the son of Henry and Katherine (Smith) Spurck. He came here 54 years ago, and in 1899 was married to Emma V. Coulter who survives.

Other survivors besides the widow are: four sons and a daughter, Lawrence S. of Washington, D. C.; Clyde A., Lester, and Herman H. all of Galion; Mrs. J. K. Appleman of Blooming Grove; and a step-daughter, Florence Coulter of this vicinity; four grandchildren; two great grandchildren. He was the last of a family of 10 children.

Funeral services will be held Monday at 8 a. m. at St. Joseph's Catholic church. Rev. Father Louis Hoffman will officiate, and interment will be made in Fairview cemetery here.

Perique tobacco can be grown on only about 1,000 acres in Louisiana and is used as a blend with other lighter tobaccos to form a fine smoking brand.

TALKS TO P. T. A.

Mrs. Decker Addresses Galion School Group Meeting.

GALION—The speaker at an evening meeting of the Parent-Teachers' association held Friday night at the South School building, was Mrs. Ralph Decker.

Her subject was "When the Family Entertains." Other features included a tap dance by Junior Heiby; Christmas carols by the audience and led by Louise Lorentz; a play presented by Mary Wagner's second grade; Christmas songs by the first grade pupils; and a piano duet by Evelyn Adams and Dorothy Heitzman.

Mrs. Herbert Durtschi presided for the business when it was decided that a community tree would be placed at the building, a Christmas treat given to the children shortly before the vacation period. Mrs. Flora Ramsey led the devotionals. The meeting closed with refreshments served by a committee headed by Mrs. Arla Barr.

GETS NEW POST

BUCYRUS — The appointment of Miss Alberta Schimmoler as deputy clerk of courts was announced today by Carl Ross, clerk of courts. Miss Schimmoler will be in charge of the certificates of titles which replace bills of sale under the new title law passed by the Ohio legislature at the last session.

Miss Schimmoler was a former deputy under Probate Judge W. J. Schwenck and later had served as extra deputy for Clerk Ross. She more recently has been employed as a clerk in the office of County Agriculture Agent Russell Miller.

DESIGNING OF HOMES REMAINS A MAJOR ISSUE

House Planning Should Be Made Under Guidance of Capable Persons.

H. G. Wells, the noted English author, tells us that "A large part of the evils of which we complain socially today are due to the kind of houses we live in, and the exactions they make upon us."

Something of this thought, or at any rate with the objective in mind of obtaining the maximum of comfort, convenience and general satisfaction in normal living conditions, lies deep-rooted behind the urge to build your own home.

Vitally Important.

But to ensure against disappointment or disaster, the designing and planning of the home should be under capable guidance. A builder, armed with any ordinary plan sketches or clippings from a magazine, can put up a house, but it is not likely that you will be happy with the result. Planning your home is too vital a step to permit a haphazard procedure in any department of the investment.

Good, thoughtful planning will include all the features suited to your own tastes and requirements, and at the same time conform sufficiently to the other houses in your neighborhood. The less one can spend on a house the more essential it is to plan carefully to get all that can be had for the money available.

The esthetic factor in modern house design is important, but it is secondary to livability, economy and utility. In former times designers first plotted the exterior of the house, then jimmied the rooms in this shell as best they could. But the small house of 1937 is a different structure altogether, with its light, airy rooms designed to ease the pace of modern life. After all, it is on the inside of the house where the family lives.

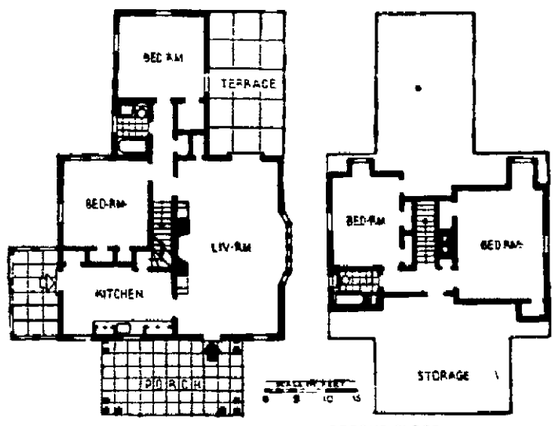
Screened Porch, Extra Room



FIRST FLOOR

SECOND FLOOR

Four bedrooms, a spacious living room with a big bay and a comfortable screened porch make this house livable and larger than it seems.

The stairs are ideally located to assure privacy for all bedrooms with a minimum of hall space. The exterior is simply designed and well proportioned.

Architect Alton L. Craft designed the house and it was constructed at Chester, N. J. The plan was selected by The Architectural Forum, 135 E. 42nd St., New York, N. Y.

AUTOMATIC STOKER DESIGNERS SOLVE COMPLICATED PROBLEMS

Dealers in automatic stoking equipment for use in boilers which burn such hard fuels as anthracite coal and coke are making use of the fact that engineers have devised automatic conveyers which overcome many awkward situations arising from the relative positions of the storage hopper and the heating plant. They have arranged now so that fuel on its way from the hopper to the heater can turn sharp corners, describe wide curves, climb grades and even travel gracefully and even down hill on its way to the heating plant.

Equipment of this sort is for automatic feeding systems, by means of which coal is shot by the delivery men into metal hoppers instead of the old fashioned coal bin, following which a worm drive conveyer carries it from the hopper to the combustion plate in the heater. In many houses, especially those in which such equipment is installed to replace an old heating plant, it is not always possible to carry out a convenient arrangement of heater and storage hopper. The house wasn't built for that sort of thing and it usually has been the task of the people installing the equipment to make the most of difficult situations.

This new swiveled arrangement provides a conveyer system which is quite flexible. It is said of it that it can describe an arc of 180 degrees in making a curve and also can be adjusted vertically if that is found necessary. The flexibility of a swiveled conveyer, it might be noted, makes it possible to "duck around" things, if it is found impossible to remove such objects.

VENTILATION BIG FACTOR IN HOME

The direction in which a home faces, more technically described as the "orientation" of a home, and the exposure and ventilation are important details in home planning.

Through the services of a competent architect the most desicable method of placing the house on the lot may be decided upon. A maximum of proper exposure, with respect to sunlight and prevailing winds, is desirable. Natural air circulation throughout the interior is another important feature. Wherever possible, rooms should have cross ventilation. When locating the home it is also advisable to take into consideration the relation of adjacent homes or buildings.

WOOD PANELING

The trend toward wood paneling continues in modern decor. More and more architects and decorators are specifying wood paneling for interior finish. Philippine mahogany, noted for its luxurious ribbon grain, and knotty pine continue as favorites. Philippine mahogany paneling, used in combination with the subtler shades of blue in upholstery, is particularly effective.

A Creole is a white descendant of the French and Spanish colonists who lived in Louisiana prior to 1803 when Louisiana became American.

HEARINGS SET

Road Abandonment Plans to Be Reviewed Week Dec. 20.

Hearings on the proposed abandonment of two short sections of state and county roads in Richland county today had been set for the week of Dec. 20 at the county commissioners' office in the courthouse.

The state highway department is attempting to give back to the county a short strip of road near Olivesburg which was annexed to the state system late last summer. Totaling little more than one-third mile, the section leads from Olivesburg northward to connect with state route 96. It is a part of the old Shiloh-Newville road.

In Mifflin township, the county seeks to vacate an eight-tenths mile of the Crider road in the Muskingum Conservancy district. County commissioners will view the proposed improvement next Wednesday and the hearing on objections to the abandonment will be held Dec. 22.

Hearing on the proposed abandonment of the section of highway at Olivesburg has been set for Dec. 21.

Consolidation of County Records Gets Under Way

Mansfield and Richland county residents who have had difficulty finding information in city and county records will have fewer places to look as the result of a drive to consolidate records now under way, according to Probate Judge C. J. Anderson.

"All birth records in the county have been taken to the health department office at the city building after they were transcribed by WPA workers," Judge Anderson said. The records of births previously had been kept in probate court.

In addition, records of naturalization, which for several years have been divided between probate court and the clerk of courts offices, have been consolidated in the clerk of courts office where applications for citizenship are handled.

The bringing together of the birth records, particularly, is expected to do away with much confusion, Judge Anderson said, since they have been kept in a different office than the one in which they are compiled.

Monthly reports of births in both the city and county are submitted to the health department, yet the records were stored in probate court.

STOCKS POINT LOWER DURING EARLY TRADING

Boardroom Sentiment Mixed; Textile Orders Encourage Analysts.

NEW YORK — (AP) — Leading stocks pointed moderately lower in today's early market proceedings.

Boardroom sentiment was mixed before the start of trading, although a few overnight items held cheering implications.

Helping to confirm thoughts of some analysts that the business slump may be nearing bottom were reports of a substantial jump in orders for textiles in New York.

During the past several days it was said contracts had been placed for between 40,000,000 and 50,000,000 yards of gray goods and printcloths at prices slightly above previous quotations. These were understood to have been the first sizable purchases in this field since last March.

VOTE TUESDAY

Electors in Crestline School Area to Decide on Levy.

Voters in six sections of Sandusky township, included in the Crestline special school district, will go to the polls Tuesday to vote on a three-mill levy for school operating purposes.

The proposed levy, which was defeated by a vote of 529 to 457 at the regular election Nov. 2, is needed to keep the Crestline schools operating during the rest of the year, according to board of education members.

The schools have been forced to cut expenses and curtail extra-curricular activities since the opening of the term, due to the lack of funds.

Approximately 75 pupils from Richland county have attended the Crestline schools for three years after the half dozen sections of the township were consolidated with the special district.

DOROTHY LAMOUR WANTS A BABY

She'll Quit Screen Next Year, Studio Employes Told.

HOLLYWOOD —(AP)— Dorothy Lamour served notice on her studio today that she would quit pictures Dec. 10, 1938, to become a mother.

"I want a baby of my own and I want it before I am 25," she said.

The actress, who has had roles in "The Hurricane" and "Jungle Princess," notified the studio through her attorney. She rejected a studio suggestion that she adopt a child, the attorney said.

The New Orleans actress was 23 yesterday. She is the wife of Herbert Kay orchestra leader.

BOSTON WOOL

BOSTON —(AP)— (U. S. Dept. Agr.)—The tone in the Boston wool market yesterday sontinued to show improvement.

Increased firmness was being shown in most grades of domestic greasy combing wools. In addition to some further business in fine western grown wools, lower grades were getting inquiries from mills. A little quarter blood fleece wool was sold at prices mostly on the low side of the range, 53 to 57 cents scoured basis, which was comparable to 30 to 32 cents in the grease for Ohio wools. Bids just under this range have been made upon sizable quantities and were refused.

PROBE $75,000 DEFICIT

KENTON — (AP) — City council ordered all expenditures halted today pending an investigation of a reported $75,000 deficit in city funds. Council members demanded a "full and complete" report by Monday night.

REACH ACCORD ON OLD TAX BILL

City and County Agree on Plan, Avert $5,000 Penalty For Delinquency.

to the general fund, it was pointed out.

The county has agreed to deduct the $223.88 from the $1,236.11 water bill that it owes and make a cash settlement of $1,002.23 to the water department.

The plan was worked out yesterday, the last day on which the Whittemore act, which permits installment payments of delinquent taxes without interest, was in force.

The tax debt is for special assessments on the cleaning of two streams and on a plot of ground owned by the city for the use of the water works department.

The $5,000 penalty that would have been assessed was accrued interest on the principal over the past 17 years.

STRICKEN AT 65

H. J. W. Smith, Ritter Company Auditor, Dies.

H. J. W. Smith, 65, auditor at the Chas. Ritter company for the past four years, died early today at the General hospital following an illness of two weeks. Mr. Smith was born in Washington county, O., Jan. 12, 1872, and came to Mansfield 31 years ago.

He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Earl Kochheiser of Mansfield and Mrs. O. B. Weinman of Pittsburgh, Pa.; three sons, Ralph E., of Mansfield, Hubert J. W., of Cleveland, and Lindley M., of Honolulu; a brother, J. B. Smith, of Huntington, W. V., and six grandchildren. Mr. Smith was a member of the Park Avenue Baptist church.

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 p. m. Monday at the Finefrock funeral home in charge of Rev. Hayes M. Braker. Burial will be in the Memorial park cemetery.

other parts of the country, was hit by floods and record windstorms yesterday, causing damage which mounted to well over a million dollars, dispatches said.

More than six inches of rain fell in some sections of the state and the Yuba river washed away 15 homes at Downieville, Calif. Homes were damaged, railroad tracks washed out and crops were destroyed as cloudbursts sent rivers far out of their banks.

The wind reached a record velocity of 75 miles per hour at the San Francisco airport and air travel was suspended in all directions. A Northwestern Pacific passenger train was trapped between two slides near Willitts, Calif., and 20 passengers were forced to find shelter in ranch houses.

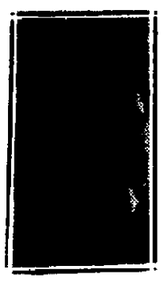
Ohio Parole Jury Indicts Ex-Constable for Perjury



Not That It Matters

—By JANE WILLIAMS

A NEW LOW in asininity and stupidity was sounded the other day when Mrs. Virginia Jenckes, member of congress from Indiana, suggested on the floor of the house that the Japanese cherry trees around the tidal basin in Washington be uprooted in token of our disapproval of Japanese aggression in China.

We don't know Mrs Jenckes, but we'll bet she was one of those hot-blooded patriots who changed the name of sauerkraut to Liberty cabbage during the World war—but kept right on eating it. She probably was in favor of discarding the German language and German music from our schools, because we disapproved of all things German.

Following the same line of reasoning we should, we presume, refuse to use the cures and formulas that have been discovered by German medical scientists because we do not approve of Herr Hitler and his chesty manner; perhaps we should burn all of the priceless Italian canvasses that are in America and boycott the music of Pucinni and Toscanini, to show our disapproval of Il Duce and his aggression in Ethiopia and Spain.

Even though Japan carried her program of invasion and land grabbing right over to these American shores, would there be any thing gained by destroying trees, the indescribable beauty of which delights millions of persons every year?

The other members of congress aren't responsible for the lady from the Hoosier state, but it's too bad that such funny things have to go in the Congressional record.

GEORGE ABBOTT, one of the more determined souls of the American theater, who produced such hits as "Three Men on a Horse" and "Boy Meets Girl," has scored a personal triumph in the matter of judgment Against the advice of all of the wise heads in the theater he launched a play on Dec. 16, 1936 with the title "Brother Rat." They all told him that no play could succeed with a title like that Next Thursday the producer is having a big celebration in honor of rounding out the first year of his comedy, which is still going strong in New York and with three companies on the road

The moniker, "Brother Rat," isn't what you'd think at all, having nothing to do with gangsters and "rats" of the underworld. It is the cheery salutation of upper classmen at the Virginia Military Institute, and designates a classmate as being a great guy, a swell gent and a good egg.

The Abbott play adds a colorful bit to American slanguage—although its a bit confusing, for if you're called a "brother rat" you don't know whether its a dirty name or a compliment.

A NEWS story yesterday from Washington Court House told of Everett Jones of Springfield being sentenced to die in the electric chair on March 25, for a hold up slaying July 4. When sentence was passed Jones is reported to have told the judge "I'm glad the death penalty is mandatory; it is better to die than not to be able to live proudly."

It was the dramatic speech of an emotional boy, and I can see Jones, his thin pale face lighted by pale eyes, thinking it up in his cell. Perhaps he practiced saying it.

Jones was one of the boys who interested me at Ohio State Reformatory because he had ability and at one time conducted a column on The New Day, the prison paper. But everyone who knew him, including members of the Ohio parole board, felt that he was destined to die in the electric chair or to spend his life in prison. A strange, inoffensive boy, with imagination and sensitive spirit, but absolutely no mental balance. He was paroled once and went to an excellent position. In three or four days he was back at the institution, having stolen a watch that meant nothing to him. I always believed that he should have been kept in prison permanently, but he had done nothing, at that time, to merit such a sentence.

While society undoubtedly will be benefitted with Jones out of the way, it still seems a great pity that there wasn't some spark in the boy's soul to hold back the relentless forces that carried him to a dark destiny.

Effinger Carries Fight to Higher Courts

BLACK LEGION'S CHIEF BATTLES COURT RULING

Lima Judge Denies Habeas Corpus Writ, Holds He Must Return to Michigan.

LIMA —(AP)— Set for a "last ditch" fight, Virgil H. Effinger, accused commander of the Black Legion, planned today an appeal from a court decision that he must return to Michigan to face charges of criminal syndicalism and possession of bombs

Common Pleas Judge E. E. Everett late yesterday denied the bald, portly one-time Lima electrical contractor a writ of habeas corpus and ordered him surrendered on two extradition warrants to Michigan authorities.

Decision Brings Tears.

While the head of the hooded order, tears streaming down his ruddy cheeks, caressed his weeping wife and daughters, defense Attorney Clarence C Miller immediately announced his intention to take the decision to the court of appeals.

Judge Everett denied a motion for new hearing and allowed Miller 10 days to file his appeal motion. He also ordered that Effinger's bond be raised Monday to $2,000. The alleged "major general" of the legion had been at liberty since his sudden surrender last Friday under $1,000 bail.

"You mean you're going to appeal?" John Ricca, assistant Wayne county (Detroit) prosecutor asked Miller.

"We're going to fight this thing on up," the defense attorney replied.

He protested increase of bond but Judge Everett disregarded him with the comment that "this offense is more serious than I first assumed."

Michigan authorities were grouped in the court room, ready to take Effinger into custody, when the appeal notice was announced.

Miller contended throughout the day-long hearing that the two warrants, signed 15 months ago by Gov. Martin L Davey, were faulty because they "lacked proper documents" Judge Everett held they were proper and that there was "no evidence of irregularities on the part of either Michigan or Ohio"

The actual extradition of Effinger could be delayed indefinitely by appeals to higher courts, including the United States supreme court.

Evidently they do not provide music with their basketball in Columbus schools. At least, this was the conception before the Mansfield-Columbus South game at the high school last night While the two teams were warming up, the Mansfield band, seated above the visitors' basket, played a piece. The first blasts from the horns startled the Columbus players so completely that they just stood on the floor for several moments. Mansfield won, 23 to 21, incidentally.

Law and order in Shelby was in new hands for several hours last night while the city's police and municipal officials attended a chicken supper at the Shenandoah community hall. During the festivities, protection of the city was turned over to Deputy Sheriff Glenn Humphrey and Corporal Scott Radcliffe and Patrolman R. L. Alexander of the State highway patrol at Mansfield. "All was quiet while we were in charge," Humphrey said.

Some of the pedestrians who saw the scene enacted on Park avenue east are still chuckling about the wild scramble that followed the escape of a good-sized pig from a truck and the animal's capture on the ice. Tumbling from the truck, the animal seemed stunned for a moment and then scampered off with a volunteer company of rescuers in pursuit. Handicapped by the insecure footing, the pig and pursuers waged a lively battle for a few minutes, with the men finally overcoming the squealing porker and bringing him back to the fold.

TESTIMONY AT INQUIRY FALSE, JURORS STATE

Duffy Says Ex-Official Told Falsehood in Denying Moves To 'Sell' Paroles.

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Sherman Chrysler, former constable, faced today an indictment for perjury—the first such action taken by the special grand jury since it began investigation of Ohio's parole system last Nov. 22.

The indictment, returned yesterday, was prompted by Chrysler's statement before the grand jury that he did not know Arch W. Naylor, key witness in the investigation who admitted that he helped prisoners obtain paroles for fees.

Approached Convict, Claim.

Chrysler also supposedly approached C. Stirling Smith, former president of the Standard Trust company of Cleveland who entered Ohio penitentiary in 1934 to serve a one to 30 year sentence for embezzlement of funds. Smith has been a patient in the penitentiary hospital for the past month.

Atty. Gen. Herbert S. Duffy, head of the investigation, said that Chrysler had denied being acquainted wtih Naylor, had denied contacting Smith in the penitentiary and had testified he had not visited Naylor, on one occasion, at a Columbus hotel.

The attorney general said he had proof that Chrysler talked with Naylor for an hour at the hotel after visiting the penitentiary.

"Did you tell Mr. Smith that for $10,000 you could get him released from the penitentiary?" Chrysler was asked.

"I did not," he replied.

Makes Further Denial.

Chrysler said that after leaving the penitentiary, following the alleged visit to Smith, he was called to the police station for being on state property without permission.

"You didn't admit to Warden (James C.) Woodard and the others who were present in the police station that you were sent down there by Mr. Naylor?" asked Duffy.

"No sir," replied Chrysler. "I never spoke to Mr. Naylor in my life."

The Chrysler indictment listed portions of the former constable's testimony and added it was "false in each and every particular."

Duffy announced that Mr. and Mrs. Martin Fricker of near Lancaster were among the persons subpoenaed to testify before the jury which is under adjournment until Monday.

ROME AWAITING LEAGUE VERDICT

Thousands to Jam Square to Hear Grand Council Decree On League of Nations.

ROME—(U P)—Italy is expected to announce her withdrawal from the League of Nations today, and the Fascist press hinted that "it may be the turning point in the country's life"

Three hundred thousand persons were expected to jam the square in front of Venice palace to hear the decisions of the Fascist grand council, which meets in extraordinary session for the second time since Premier Benito Mussolini's advent to power.

Officially, Il Duce's reason for summoning the grand council was a secret, and it was said that the councillors would not be informed of their task until they entered their chambers in the palace at 10 p m. (4 p. m. EST).

It is expected that Achille Starace, secretary of the Fascist party, will read the council's decisions from the balcony of the palace Mussolini then is expected to deliver a speech explaining the background and the extent of the council's action.

Italy's withdrawal from the league will cause no surprise but some concern in European capitals. Mussolini reportedly has despaired of patching up his differences with Britain and France, and has determined to make his country the "dominant" power in the Mediterranean

O.S.U. OFFICIALS UNPERTURBED OVER CO-ED'S VITAMIN REVOLT

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Ohio State university officials apparently remained unperturbed today over Coed Vera Goldman's celery and vitamin revolt in Neil hall dormitory

Miss Goldman, freshman from Cleveland Heights, yesterday obtained the signatures of 102 of her 275 fellow dormitory coeds on her complaining petition that dormitory diet was deficient, or as she tersely summed it up, "lousy."

Making the Napolenoic observation that "an army travels on its stomach," she buttressed the petition, filed with the student senate, with a supplementary letter listing these lapses in culinary art;

"The meals are badly planned, starches and cheap fats predominating, meats are tough, stringy and unappetizing and vegetables are cooked to soggy messes and there is too much of stalish bread and constarch pudding.

"Two hundred and seventy girls are being literally starved by those who are supposed to be caring for their welfare while at school.

"One girl at the hall has gained between 16 and 20 pounds in two months because of the starchy food served there"

Other alleged bits of domestic mis-feasance, mal-feasance and non-feasance included:

Breakfast served too early, meals (3) not worth $1 per day, poor coffee and no cocoa, condensed milk for coffee cream and scanty Sunday evening meals.

The student senate gallantly jumped into the breach by appointing a committee to investigate the charges but university officials, including those who supervise the residence halls, said that no complaint had been made to them and that until there is, no action will be taken.

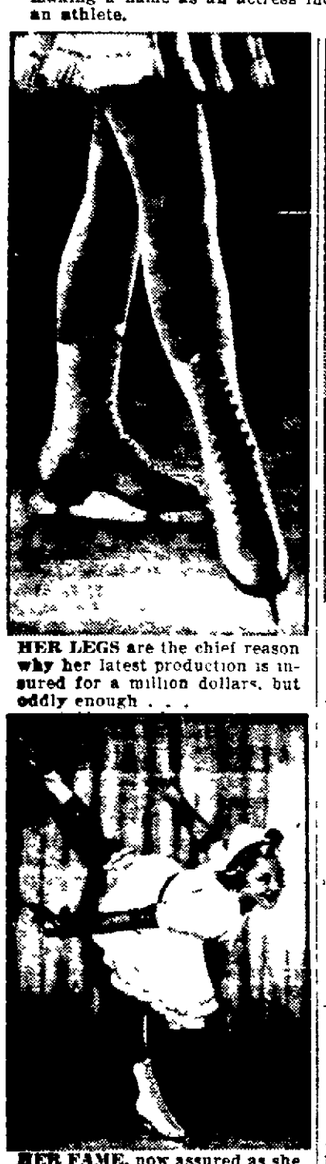
Hollywood Speaks—

—By ROBBIN COONS

Hollywood annals are chock-full of athletes who have been lifted through pre-eminence in sport to sudden stardom in the movies. They've reached the films through football, swimming, track, tennis and boxing And Darryl Zanuck signed up Sonja Henie mainly because she was a champion skater. But Sonja's career differs from the others in this important respect—she's making a name as an actress independent of her reputation as an athlete.



HER LEGS are the chief reason why her latest production is insured for a million dollars, but oddly enough . . .

HER SKATES, which Shirley Temple looks over cost only $40 a pair. Yet they are the basic groundwork of . . .

HER FAME, now assured as she rehearses for her third picture, "Happy Landing," and adds glamor to her name through . .

HER ROMANCE, on and off the screen with handsome Tyrone Power.

CHORUS OF 100 WILL PRESENT 'THE MESSIAH'

Leaders of Mansfield Choirs Unite to Stage Famous Oratorio Tomorrow.

A 100-voice chorus, comprised of members, soloists and directors of various Mansfield choirs, will present Handel's Christmas oratorio, "The Messiah," at 7:30 p. m., Sunday at the First Lutheran church.

Greatest of all oratorios, "The Messiah," is the story of the life of Christ set to music, and will be presented in three parts: "Prophecy," "Nativity," and "Death and Resurrection."

Presented for the first time in Dublin, Ireland, in April, 1742, the oratorio has become an annual event with most large sacred choral groups. This is the eighth Christmas season it has been presented in Mansfield.

Mrs. Ewing Directs.

The presentation Sunday evening will again be under the direction of Mrs. Claude F. Ewing, director of the choir at the Central Methodist church. Appearing as soloists will be Mrs. William J. Hazeltine, soprano soloist at the First Congregational church; Mrs. Charles O. Anglin, alto, and director of the choir at the First Presbyterian church; L. A. Cook, tenor, director of the First Lutheran church choir; A. LeMoine Derr, baritone, director of the choir at the First Congregational church, and director of music at Hedges Junior high school. Accompanying the chorus will be Miss Elizabeth Burneson, organist at the Central Methodist church.

Mrs. Hazeltine will sing three solos in the oratorio, "There Were Shepherds," "Rejoice Greatly," and "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth." Mrs. Anglin's numbers will be "O Thou That Tellest Good Tidings," "He Shall Feed His Flock," and "He Was Despised."

Two solos will be sung by Mr. Cook, "Comfort Ye My People," and "Every Valley Shall be Exalted." Mr. Derr will present "Thus Saith the Lord," "But Who May Abide," and "Why Do the Nations So Furiously Rage Together?"

The final rehearsal of the "Messiah" chorus will be held at 3 p. m., Sunday at the First Lutheran church.

HEAR STUDENTS

Baptists to Have Junior High Choir as Guests Sunday.

The John Simpson Junior high school choir under the direction of Lawrence S. Frank, teacher of music at the school, will present a special musical program Sunday morning during the service at Park Avenue Baptist church.

The choir will sing, "God Rest You Merry Gentlemen," "I saw Three Ships," "Silent Night," "Hark the Herald Angels Sing." The church choir, also under the direction of Frank, minister of music at the church, will sing Bach's "God My King Thy Might Confessing."

Three organ selections will be presented by Frank during the service. He will play, 'Meditation in F" by Reinicke, "Pres de la Mar" by Arensky, and "Russian Folk Song." Rev. Hayes M. Braker, pastor will preach on the subject, Bad Tenants and Empty Houses."

A meeting of the church finance committee will be held at 7:30 p. m. Wednesday at the church. Tolman Burns is chairman.

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 11, 1937.

Drive carefully tomorrow—see Monday's paper for traffic accidents caused by somebody's carelessness.

With Winter scheduled to start its regular performance December 22, the current preview seems entirely uncalled for.

According to a famous physicist, the world will exist for at least another billion years—which is apparently just about the length of time that will be needed.

Busy Days In Mansfield Stores.

WITH Christmas just two weeks ahead, holiday shopping in Mansfield showed a decided impetus today.

It is being noted also, by local and visiting shoppers, that Mansfield merchants have made preparations for the holiday season with the most complete and attractive stocks, in all lines of merchandise, ever shown in this city.

In recent years Mansfield has established and maintained an enviable reputation for the excellence of its stores—with the result that this has become the recognized trading center for a constantly expanding north-central Ohio area.

Colorful street lighting and decorations, coupled with appealing window displays and attractively arranged store interiors, provide a real treat for shoppers in Mansfield.

Whatever your needs may be—whether for gifts or for your own personal or family requirements—you will find what you want in Mansfield stores.

Four Years After Repeal.

FOUR years have passed since repeal of federal prohibition and the problem of how to retain the liquor business without allowing it to become even more of a public nuisance is being very generally discussed.

Ohio's liquor monopoly experiment, which places revenues above regulations, has given this state the worst sale-by-the-drink conditions to be found anywhere in the country.

It is already becoming evident that the next session of the legislature will have before it a number of proposals intended to remedy the present intolerable situation.

Disgust with the liquor business as it is now being conducted, should not be permitted to bring about impracticable action, as was done by adoption of the federal prohibition amendment.

What now seems to be needed is a sane and sensible revamping of state liquor laws and regulations, with removal of entertainment features from liquor sales places; enforcement of reasonable closing hours; reduction in number of beer and liquor licenses, and closer scrutiny of reputation and record of licensees and applicants for licenses.

While it was promised in pre-repeal arguments that "the saloon would not be permitted to return," many contend that a return of saloons, with the careful licensing and enforced regulations under which they operated, would bring a considerable improvement over present sale-by-the-drink methods.

Would Curb Solicitation By Phone.

TOLEDO'S city council is considering an ordinance to prohibit fund solicitation by telephone.

Within the past few years the practice of telephone solicitation for various sorts of money-raising campaigns and questionable advertising schemes has been developed into considerable of a racket.

Such solicitations are usually made by out-of-town persons who establish relations with a local organization of some kind and take a large percentage of the money.

In the absence of such an ordinance as Toledo proposes, the habit of disregarding telephone solicitations by strangers is a good one.

Hazardous Winter Driving.

SNOW and ice make driving an automobile much more dangerous, unless motorists exercise the utmost care.

Here are a few rules for winter driving, which, if more generally observed, would prevent many accidents:

1. Get into the farthest right-hand lane early if intending a right turn, or into the lane nearest the center of the street if intending a left turn.

2. Use your rear vision mirror, so as to know what the traffic situation is behind you.

3. "Blink" your stop light as you slow down, to indicate intention of stopping or changing your course.

4. If traffic conditions require, use the arm signal no matter how cold it is.

5. In pulling away from curbs proceed very slowly until you get into a normal traffic lane.

Profit In Righteousness.

CARDINAL WILLIAM O'CONNELL of Boston, on his seventy-eighth birthday, taking a bird's-eye view of the current state of human society, says:

"The sickness of the world today is hatred. In every field of endeavor, whether it be society, labor, business or industry, there cannot be healing until there is a return to faith in human beings and love for them and trust in them.

"We are decadent today because our society is based on the quest for material gain, and the quest has bred hatreds and distrust. There is no longer time for friendly human relationships based on the spirit."

He doesn't want to preach, he adds, but people need religion.

It is an old story that "righteousness profiteth a nation," but it has to be learned over and over. An American economist not long ago showed, in a series of historical sketches, how nations and communities became wealthy in periods of religious zeal and then became poor when they lost their faith and morals.

The cardinal doubtless wouldn't urge religion for that reason; what he is concerned with is spiritual riches. Yet religion and prosperity, or at least morality and prosperity, seem to go together in a surprising way. The social virtues seem to help business. Unsocial qualities and practices hurt business and impoverish society.

It is being deplored that the average radio program "is addressed to an intelligence possessed by a child of 12." So that's what makes them seem so high-brow!

McIntyre's New York Day by Day

THIS seems a good day to add to the Yuletide cheer with a few arpeggios from the harmonica Larry Adler sent over from London. My wife seems to think that every time I practice I'll get caught up in the chromatic lever and emerge with a hare-lip or something.

That's because the first day I had it I huffed and puffed the lining off my upper plate. Too ambitious, I was. Starting off with Ravel's Bolero. Today I'll take off with something sweet and low. "Goodnight Sweetheart," for instance. (Voice: Sex sneaking in!)

Notice how clearly I tootle the first note. The technique is to cover four holes with your mouth, the three to your left with your tongue and blow into the fourth. And for that wah-wah tremolo, you simply jiggle your cupping hand. Anyway it beats the zither.

If I keep on as good as this I'll probably be making a debut at the Metropolitan. Maybe Lucius Beebe will loan me his purple-tinted dress suit for the triumph. Can't you see me being led to the Whitney box while the vast audience stands and cheers! Ah, the wasted columning years!

And young Larry Adler. Just a broth of a boy. Little did he wot in sending me this harmonica named for him that he was bringing on professional eclipse. All over London his posters read—King of the Harmonica! And now another King has lost his crown. Life is like that. A King today and just one of the crowd tomorrow. But he must be brave. Chin up and cheerio. Hawkins, my three-stud black pearls and Lady Dinwiddie's cigaret case. The one with the green jade edgings, we must be gay!

It is tough to detour a young fellow at the peak of his career, but I cannot let mawkish sentimentality stand in the way. After all, my public is first. I better unhook my collar. Blowing this way I'm beginning to heave a mite. You can't expect a fellow leading a sedentary life to be long-winded. There are many novices on the harmonica who blow themselves bug-eyed before they even master "Over the Waves." The proper way is to take things easy. After all, about all there is to this racket is inhaling, exhaling, swaying a bit and rolling the eyes. Also glance at my foot work. How on a high note I rise gently on the balls of my feet. Neat, eh what!

I might as well switch to something heavier. A number with a few trills and a lingering cadenza or so. Then on to the quick stuff, such as those up-and-down scales in the Rhapsody in Blue. From one end of the harmonica to the other in lightning slides. Nice going over. Puffing a little to be sure, but what would you expect. Now for Pop Goes the Weasel, triple time.

Don't look now, but I think I'm bleeding in the corners of the mouth. Nothing to worry about. Art is often a cruel master. But no "Dying Egypt Dying" stuff for me. How glorious the quality called courage. See, I'm smiling. There's no cause for alarm. Everybody keeps their seats. I assure I'll be all right. I'm perfectly dandy. This dizziness will pass. I've swayed worse than this lots of times without blowing a harmonica and got home all right. Just a blown-out fuse on a high note, I suppose. Hear the bells ringing and is this room spinning! I'm glad nobody sent me a French horn.

I hate to keep complaining, but my right wrist is throbbing great guns. That's from the humming bird action of my hand for the tremolo effects. Also my tongue feels all swollen and ragged at the edges. For pity sake, look at it in the mirror. It suggests a gob of raw hamburger. And it may be because of a poor light, but it appears as though I've blown out my left tonsil. Start out to blow a few gentle arias on the harmonica and wind up looking like a tough day at the slaughter house.

Larry Adler can not only have his harmonica, but his crown all done up in cellophane with cute red ribbon bows Anyway a harmonica is just a mouth organ that any ten-year-old can play. Blowing and slobbering around to make a little music. Whatever got into me anyway?

Destruction in China.

There is a human tragedy involved in Japan's war of aggression against China that goes beyond even the ruthless killing of Chinese noncombatants. It lies in the destruction of much of the technical and educational progress that China had made over a period of years under great handicaps. Foreign observers generally agree that in the last decade intelligent and patriotic Chinese have labored to remarkable effect in improving the condition of their country. But already a large part of their work has been destroyed by the Japanese.

No amount of Japanese propaganda can explain away the spiritual damage that this war has inflicted upon China. Nor can it answer the words of the Chinese government official, educated in the United States, as he supervised the burning of departmental records in Nanking, to prevent their falling into the hands of the Japanese. "What is the use?" and he is reported to have wept, as he asked the question. "We have tried to pull our country up to the standard of others, so that we could look at other nations with a feeling of equality and rightly demand mutual respect. Now it appears that all our efforts are to be useless."—Kansas City Star.

A VERY SENSITIVE LADY

No Simple Way To Balance Federal Budget

—By LESLIE EICHEL

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT evidently is determined to go further towards balancing the federal budget. The task will become increasingly difficult as the winter wears on. The unemployed will need vast aid. A revision of the tax on undistributed profits will take away needed revenue And nobody yet knows how funds will be raised for the farm relief measure.

It is true that reduction of governmental expenditures—balancing the budget—is immediately deflationary.

But it is also true that, in the long run, a meeting of the outgo with ingo, and eventually a reduction of debt will result in a sound condition and confidence.

It will not mean, however, that the condition of the average man will be any better, except that there may be more jobs in private industry. It will not mean that our economic system will be any sounder than it was in the past—when the budget WAS balanced. That soundness may come only when the great masses of the population share in what they produce. It is not a redistribution of wealth we need so much as a wider—a far wider—distribution of purchasing power.

That, incidentally, applies equally as well among nations as among individuals. Nations eventually find some excuse to seize what they desire; individuals are less able to take joint action.

* * *

IF WE BORROW—

It seems certain, too, that the administration has been frightened out of levying any additional taxes, even if the taxes would balance the budget and bring about a sounder financial condition. (The cry, of course, is "Stop spending, instead!" As aforementioned, it will be difficult to stop spending with millions hungry.)

Thus, the administration will resort to borrowing again. That will add to the present inflationary level. (Economists tell us that in spite of the recent drop in business and prices we still are operating on a highly inflationary basis due to governmental spending and borrowing and means to induce easy credit.)

While on this subject, let us take the words of one economic institute, the Alexander Hamilton:

"An elimination of government borrowing would remove one of the chief supports of this inflated structure. Its collapse would involve a more rapid fall in the national income than in the price level, a consequent curtailment of production with an increase in unemployment and a general economic depression.

"While a balancing of the federal budget would not contribute to an immediate business revival but would, on the contrary, accelerate the current recession, a balancing of the budget would, in the long run, be worth much more than the price of a temporary slump. While government borrowing would aid in checking the present recession, it would mean a closer approach to the collapse of federal credit and such chaotic economic conditions that even the 1929-1932 catastrophe would, in retrospect, seem like a mild recession.

"Consequently, the present prospect of continued borrowing by the government is not a welcome one even though it means better conditions during the coming year than those which would otherwise prevail."

Worst of all — neither Democrats nor Republicans, nor even the New Dealers offer any solution that will be fundamental. To men trying to penetrate the future, their words seem merely so many mouthings.

Listen, World!

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

There Is a Hell!

SOMEONE should revise hell . . . bring it up to date . . . put the fear of it back into our hearts again.

Hell's a joke, nowadays, to most of us. Great Grandad used to shudder in unquestioning dread before that vision of burning pits and sizzling souls. But we, today, say—

"Hell? Hooey! Show me the blisters!"

We moderns are realists. To our minds, our future life—if there be any — will be occupied neither in roasting nor harping, but in progressive evolution. Mistakes? We'll outgrow them. Punishment? That notion is only the outgrowth of jungle cruelty, jungle fear. So why worry? Let's live while the living's good!

A very comforting philosophy, if true. But unfortunately it isn't. There may be no blisters to show in proof of hell, but there's a hell, nevertheless, far more horrible than Grandad's simple rotisserie—a hell which will catch up with us, right here and now, instead of in some chancey future which we can laughingly ignore. . . .

Not a boogie-man terror of burning pits—

BUT A COLD AND CRUEL HELL OF SEARED SPIRIT AND FRIGID FLESH. . . .

THE HELL OF NUMBED SENSES WHICH CAN NO LONGER FEEL.

How we love to feel—we pampered, luxury-loving creatures of the Machine Age! Sensation . . . how we cherish it for its own sake . . . devising amazing methods to arouse it, increase it! Blazing lights . . . blaring orchestras . . . racing cars. The mad delight of tingling nerves, pounding blood. Strange adventures! Forbidden delights! Excitement! Risk! Before we are out of our basinettes, we're on fire . . . crushing life against our hot and greedy lips . . . gulping its fiery essence in furious haste . . . crying, "More! More! MORE!"

Yes, we love to feel. Feeling—that's all there is to life. Work . . . wisdom . . . service . . . once people thought these were good and sufficient goals for a man's energy. What dumb clucks they must have been! Blind moles burrowing in musty ruts while the glory of life whirled by! Why work—why study or serve—when one can feel?

And why shouldn't we feel all there is to feel . . . even though there are "No Trespassing" signs? Why shouldn't we clutch and grab, yearn and take all we can? What have we to fear? "A Consciousness of Sin?" Pooh! That's a hang-over from Medicine Man Taboos. Moderns don't believe in sin . . . don't fear punishment. You've a right to do anything you please, as long as you can get by with it!

So on we race . . . dizzy with desire . . . drunk with delight . . . tingling with wave upon wave of sensation—

Until suddenly, some day, we are seized with a vague uneasiness. What's wrong? We don't know. Everything seems okay. We're young, healthy, happy, have enough to pay our bills. Then what's worrying us? We can't quite say. But something's different . . . We feel a little down . . . Not quite so keen as we ought to be . . . Maybe we're tired? Yes, that's it. We're tired . . . need a little rest.

So we take a little rest. And presently we're as good as new. Or are we? No—we're still not quite fit. Things don't seem the same. We're not getting the kick out of things we used to. But we must! WE MUST! For lookit all the fun there is ahead! Never has life seemed so beautiful—so desirable. All those old sermons about Right and Wrong? They're the bunk! Live while the living's good! WATCH OUR SMOKE!

But — there — is — no — smoke. Where we once burned, we are cold. Where we once yearned, we are still. Vainly we remember the tingling nerves, the boiling blood of those dear, wild, reckless days when we rode, regardless, over all barriers . . . clutching . . . crushing . . . Vainly we wait and watch for our pulses to stir again. They do not stir!

And slowly, hideously, the Truth breaks in upon us. We cannot feel! We cannot feel! WE CANNOT FEEL!

My God, have pity!

THERE IS A HELL!

What One Man Thinks

—By DAVID GIBSON

The only laws that prohibit are man-made.

Too many of us desire winnings rather than earnings.

A smoky chimney is a waste of fuel, a noisy machine a waste of power.

The greatest reform in religion is the elimination of fear from its preaching and teaching.

This world has only been fit to live upon since the invention of the moldboard plow—about 170 years.

More evidence against the human race: More than 600-thousand of Dale Carnegie's "How to Win Friends and Influence People" have been sold.

During daylight hours of the business week, the speed of motor vehicles on Manhattan Island will not average 11 miles per hour on north and south streets and 7 miles on those from east to west—not much over horse-and-buggy times.

Hoodoo.

HERE is a good example of mind over matter: Colgate University, Hamilton, N. Y., has a good football team.

But Syracuse University, near by, has a better one both in men, training and record, and so acknowledged by followers of the game.

And Colgate admits it!

But Syracuse has never been able to win a game from Colgate—at least not in 14 years!

The annual football conflict between these two institutions of higher learning is quite an event, and former graduates of both universities and of all ages, gather from far and near.

Syracuse and its following believe that Colgate hoodoos its football team—and the belief is proof of the fact.

Colgate is richly endowed by the Colgate family—century-old manufacturers of soaps and toilet preparations, Jersey City, N. J.

Its student body is limited by charter to 1000, made up for the most part of young men of rich and well-to-do parents, average age about 19 years; they dress better and are a bit more snooty than most university students.

At these games the Colgate students all sit together—never with friends, relatives or their girls. When the play begins, they yell. "Hoodoo, Hoodoo," in unison—a minor-keyed moan or chant, and all the while they swing their arms up and down in measured rhythm.

They keep this up all during the game, intensified when Syracuse gets the ball and interspersed with the song:

"For it's the Hoodoo, the famous Hoodoo,
The jinx that always rests on Syracuse;
It makes them stumble and fall and fumble,
Whene'er they turn the dreaded Jonah loose."

All this is nothing more than mass-hypnotism applied to a small group comprising the Syracuse players and who need an intensive pep-talk from their coach—aided, possibly, by the professor of psychology of the university and for its mental resistance.

Riley's Father.

LAST week in this department I printed a story of the old Riley home, Greenfield, Ind. I suppose that if I selected the subjects for this column according to the letters I receive, why, I wouldn't print anything save stories about James Whitcomb Riley, the neighbors in my old home town and those in and around the ancient history of baseball.

My old friend, Hugh Kane, managing editor, the Cleveland News, is particularly insistent relative to Riley reminiscences.

I imagine it is a good deal as in the case of newspaper editors themselves; if they judged the contents of their papers by the letters they receive, they wouldn't print anything but comics—another sign that we are the missing link—the human race hasn't got here yet!

I knew Mr. Riley as well as anybody, and which wasn't very well; for in many regards he surpassed the understanding of his fellow men.

I have often been urged to write a novel of old Indianapolis and have Mr. Riley wandering through its pages, but I have never written anything sustained—too much competition—everybody has written a novel or intends to write one—sometimes I think that it is a distinction not to write anything at all.

If Mr. Riley were living today, he would be 88 years old.

I don't think that he had any affection for his father; he respected him and all that, and was in all ways a dutiful son—particularly after he became prosperous as a writer and wealthy as the foremost lyceum attraction of his time.

I judge that he had no affection for his father by an incident of his childhood that he once narrated to me.

He was physically delicate and spiritually sensitive as a man—and obviously more so as a child; and childhood impressions are the stronger.

Mr. Riley said that one day in school the reading class was called; that in this study he excelled—he could read aloud not only with understanding, but feeling.

The lesson was "The Death of Little Nell," from Charles Dickens' "Old Curiosity Shop," and out of McGuffey's Fifth Reader.

Mr. Riley went on to say that there were certain paragraphs in this that he could not read without crying; that he counted the turns, found that these would fall to him; that with his cap in his pocket he asked to be excused, put off for home and to encounter his father in the door yard.

"What's you doin' home at this hour," inquired the old man; "school ain't out yet?"

"Why," replied the son, "they wuz readin' a sad piece in the reader, they wuz a part that I couldn't read without cryin', I wuz 'shamed to cry before the whole school, an'—"

"Well," said the father, "guess you ain't 'shamed to cry before me."

At the same time he seized a narrow flour barrel stave; there was a cloud of dust, the shouts of an enraged man, the resounding blows upon a frail body and the pain-screams of a delicate, sensitive child.

That child came out of that cloud of dust with no love for his father—gone, forever!

Within my memory, Old Man Riley came to Indianapolis from Greenfield to visit his son, attended the State Fair and got his gold watch and chain nipped by a dip—a pickpocket.

Now, in those days, in a relatively small county-seat town, a gold watch and chain was a badge of affluence, and the old man was much chagrined with the prospect of going home without this cherished possession.

But the next morning his son arose from a bed of illness to go down town, buy his father another, more costly and a finer watch and chain—one with a lid that he could snap in church when the sermons were too long.

That night, as the old man was leaving for home, the son handed it to him. With his head bowed low he contemplated it and finally said:

"Son, I'm goin' to cry!"

And Mr. Riley, in narrating this scene with his father, said:

"I was about to reply, 'Guess you ain't 'shamed to cry before me,' but—I didn't."

aunt and companion in Paris at the time of her disappearance last July.

Million was quoted as saying that the letter was written by Weidmann after Miss De Koven had been killed.

After recounting his trip with the girl from Paris to the suburban villa last July, the ex-convict told Magistrate Berry:

"She was going across the porch to enter a small hall. I was behind her. I seized her by the neck.

"She grabbed my wrists. Her head fell on my shoulder. Her frightened eyes met mine.

"I squeezed her very hard. Despite her apparent weakness she resisted. Then with a blow of my knee I forced her to lean backward. Her body dropped. I grabbed a napkin and like a garrote I tightened it around her neck.

"She lost consciousness. I stuck my handkerchief down her throat. A dozen minutes she was dead. Then I robbed her."

BATTLE ICE TO FREE 8 BOATS

Tugs Speed Aid To Vessels Locked In Detroit River.

TOLEDO —(U.P.)— Battering through Lake Erie ice, two tugs dispatched from Toledo today were enroute to the mouth of the Detroit river to aid the coast guard cutter Tahoma in freeing eight ice-locked ships.

Largest towing craft on the Great Lakes, the tugs Wyoming and Idaho were sent to the rescue by the Great Lakes Towing Co. Company officials this afternoon had received no reports on their progress.

The Tahoma radioed its Cleveland headquarters at 8:45 a. m. that she was working to free the grain-laden freighter W. H. Wolf, one of the vessels stuck in the Livingston channel, downbound steamer lane in the river. The auto carrier South Park broke out of the trap late yesterday and returned to Detroit.

SEARCH ROADS FOR ABDUCTORS

Akron Police Hunt Pair After Motorist Disappears.

AKRON—(AP)—Summit county sheriff's deputies searched highways at nearby Hudson today for a man identified as Earl Richardson, about 34, of Cleveland, who they said apparently was abducted and robbed near a roadhouse on route 8.

Richardson's automobile, its motor running, was found in a ditch near the tavern, waitresses said, he had "flashed" a roll of currency while drinking with two strangers.

The waitresses told officers Richardson boasted to the other men that he had "cleaned up" in a gambling game.

PLANES FIGHT AIR BATTLES

Spanish Loyalists, Fascists Each Claim Victories.

HENDAYE, FRANCO-SPANISH FRONTIER—(AP)—Victories in air battles over the Aragon front were reported today by both the Spanish and government forces.

Official dispatches from General Francisco Franco's headquarters said the insurgents won one of the greatest air fights of the civil war in the Zaragoza sector yesterday when they brought down 20 government planes. The insurgents said they lost but one ship.

The government said six insurgent planes—two of them bombers and the others pursuit ships—were shot down in a large-scale encounter in the Bujaraloz region.

HEADS ASHLAND CAGE TOURNEY

O. H. Maffet Chosen to Guide County High School Basketball Tourhament.

ASHLAND—O. H. Maffet was elected manager of the Ashland county high school basket ball tournament to be held sometime in February at a meeting of the Ashland County Schoolmasters association in the office of the county superintendent of schools.

It was decided at the meeting to hold the tournament in February, although the date and place has not yet been definitely selected. It is believed the tournament may be held on the week-end of February 18-19, or else 25-26. Last year, the tournament was held in the Ashland college gymnasium.

A committee chosen to assist Maffet consists of John Wolgamuth of Ruggles, H. M. Wiggins of Perrysville and F. L. Black of Polk.

During the meeting, it was also decided by resolution to permit four times out without penalty in basket ball games for girls in the county school system. The new ruling will go into effect in all girls' games as of Friday.

A committee was also selected to study penmanship in the county schools, and consists of R. F. McMullen of Loudonville, C. P. Lindecamp of Sullivan, and Russell Brown of Jackson township.

REMEMBER THAT NIGHT

By MARGARET GORMAN NICHOLS

CHAPTER IV

"But what she said was true! I—I must seem very cheap to you" Suddenly her anger dried her tears. "You were only amusing yourself. You thought it was a joke to take a stage-struck girl to a big party and introduce her to Brenda Bond! You knew I'd be different and create attention!" She was shaking. The staring eyes, the smiling mouths, the lifted brows were still painfully clear.

"I think you are being unfair," Philip said. "You're tired. I'll take you home."

All during the drive he wondered if he should offer to help her. It annoyed him that somehow he felt responsible for her. But there was nothing he could do for her now. Moreover, Lilyan might hear that he had befriended a lovely young girl. She might not hear the correct story and misinterpret it. No, better let it end tonight, and let Karen Mallare go her way. He would keep her in mind and make a note of her address. Selfish, of course, but it was the wise and sane thing to do.

There was no one in the apartment house lobby. Karen held out her hand and Philip took it and held it. And all at once she knew that this was a magical moment, that this was unlike anything that had ever happened to her before She was not falling in love with him! She would not! But already she knew that while he might walk out of her life tonight, he would never completely walk out of her heart. Deny it, her mind said. You can't deny it, her heart answered.

He smiled. "Are you still angry? I'm terribly sorry." He put his hand under her chin. "Keep it up, Karen. Keep it high. It's a proud, fighting chin that goes with a proud, fighting heart." He would probably never see her again. Even if she were gifted, she would be lost among countless others also gifted who never made the grade. She would work at something else and meet a boy and get married...

Karen said, "Good night, Philip." But she did not linger, knowing she could not bear to see him drive away.

Philip went back to Mrs. Ward's party.

* * *

Karen knocked on the door of Roxanne's apartment. Roxanne, wearing a pale blue satin dressing gown, opened it.

"Oh, hello, Karen. Come in. I haven't been in long. I knocked at your door but got no answer. How was the show?" She laughed. "Small town girls shouldn't be out so late."

"More has happened to me tonight than happened in twenty years in Harriston," Karen said. She took off her hat, ran her fingers through her dark hair, sank into a big brown chair, and told Roxanne what had happened tonight.

"Philip Ashley!" Roxanne almost shouted. Then she laughed her husky laugh again. "Say, you don't need anybody to tell you how to get along! Landed in New York last night and tonight you meet a playwright, go to a swell party, and meet Brenda Bond. What kind of person is Brenda Bond?"

* * *

"Brenda Bond isn't as young as I thought she was," Karen replied. "She's beautiful and blond and gracious. Philip Ashley was probably bored and I looked stupid and countrified. I didn't ask him to do anything for me and he didn't offer. He thinks I'll get disgusted and go home. But I don't have a home. And I don't want his help."

Roxanne nodded. "That's the way to talk. I don't know him but I've seen him. I've heard a lot about him. He acts, too. Did you know that? He was in one of his plays last year with Brenda Bond. He was up on the roof a couple weeks ago He's good-looking. Very good-looking."

"Is he married?"

Then Roxanne knew! Quietly she said, "No, he isn't married. From what I gather, he's a pretty swell person. He's with Brenda Bond a lot but it isn't a romance. She's at least ten years older than he is. You'd better," Roxanne said steadily, "forget him."

"I will."

But Roxanne knew she wouldn't.

* * *

Later, when Roxanne lay thinking of a tall young man in Richmond, Karen was staring in the darkness of the small room remembering everything that Philip Ashley had said. At no other time in her life had she ever felt quite so small and alone. In Harriston it had seemed so perfectly simple to come to New York and go on the stage. Other girls had. She had read stories about them. But where did you begin? How did you get started? Then, remembering again Philip's bronzed head and smile, she thought, "Some day you'll find me again and remember tonight. Some day..."

* * *

Driving back to Helen Ward's, Philip was thinking of the girl he loved, of Lilyan Kane. Lovely Lilyan, with her dark red hair, and eyes that changed colors, and smiling red mouth. In late winter they had met and loved and planned to be married in the summer. But a month ago Lilyan's father, vacationing in London had been taken gravely ill and she had hurried to him. Now, after a month, he was still critically ill and she had scarcely left his bedside.

Mrs. Ward's party was still in full swing when Philip got back. More people had arrived. Many were dancing. For the second time tonight, nodding and speaking to people as he crossed the wide luxuriously furnished room, he came to Brenda.

"You — again?" she asked, laughing. "Please take me home, Philip. I came with Craig but he had a call. Famous surgeons shouldn't attempt a social life. I've been trying to think of an excuse to get away. I'm really too tired to enjoy a party tonight."

She went away and came back wearing a long black velvet cape trimmed with ermine. They said good night to Mrs Ward and left.

Riding toward her apartment, Brenda asked: "Where did you find the beautiful, dark-haired girl, Philip" She was much too nice for Helene's crowd. She made most of us feel old and tired and used-up." She laughed quietly. "She can wear her hair parted in the center—something I can't do."

"Somebody made a brilliant crack about my having picked her up. She heard it and she was humiliated and angry. But as a matter of fact, I did." He told her about it and said, "You know, she didn't ask me to help her. Probably broke, but too proud to ask. I liked it in her."

"But suppose the poor child had lost her purse and all her money! She'd have been stranded and broke" She paused abruptly and her eyes were thoughtful. "Stranded and broke. I know a story about that. I think I know a little something of everything."

"That's what makes you a great actress and a great lady," Philip said.

Turning her head, she smiled at him. "Thank you, darling. Karen Mallare—I remember her name—is only one of the thousands of girls in New York tonight who hoped to see their names in lights. I hope your little friend is lucky." Then she asked, "How is Lilyan? Or rather, how is her father?"

"The same. Too ill to move and she can't leave him. I wrote and asked if I couldn't come. She said there was nothing I could do, and she couldn't give me any time. I shouldn't be impatient but I am. Impatience and boredom made me rescue Karen Mallare from the rain. But I've been faithful to Lilyan—completely."

"It was a bad break for both of you—her father's illness," Brenda said kindly. "It came just at the climax of your love affair when you were both very happy. There have been girls and girls in your life, Philip..."

"But only one Lilyan Kane." He smiled at her. "Has Craig Stanhope asked you to marry him again?"

She nodded. "Yes. But I told him I couldn't."

"Why?"

He stopped the car before the apartment house and Brenda looked at him.

"Why? Because I'm not worthy of him; because there are things I can't tell him, and they'd stand between us. It's a long story." She laid her hand on his sleeve. "Philip, be very sure that Lilyan is the one love of your life."

* * *

Saying good night to him at her apartment door, she went in, thinking, "Lilyan went away at the very height of their love affair. If she hadn't, perhaps Philip would be tired of her by now."

Her apartment of many spacious rooms was beautifully and tastefully furnished. Fresh flowers gave color and fragrance. Each day red roses came from Dr. Craig Stanhope, her oldest friend and most faithful admirer. Darling Craig, she thought now, who had known her all her life, whom she had lost for a few years and then met again when he was a famous surgeon and she a famous actress.

People liked to say, "Oh, yes, I know Brenda Bond very well." It was true that her life had no secrets. But every one, including Philip, wondered hy she consistently refused to marry Craig Stanhope, knowing that they loved each other.

As dawn broke over Manhattan, Brenda Bond lay awake in her white bed; Philip Ashley stood before the window in his apartment and smoked a cigaret and thought of a girl in London spending another sleepless night a the bedside of her father. Roxanne Dell slept peacefully, confident in her love; and Karen, seeing the first feeble light come through the small window, thought, "Some day he'll find me again."

* * *

For a week Karen's search for work on the stage availed nothing. Some of the people to whom she spoke were kind, others bored, still others rude. One man shook his head sadly when she said she had had no professional experience. The casting agencies she visited refused to sign her. She spoke to innumerable people, rode upon innumerable elevators, climbed thousands of steps, and walked miles each day. But she was not alone in her efforts, seeing other young men and girls turned away, too.

Girl Loves Too Well She States

By VIRGINIA LEE

"IS IT SAFE to love so strongly?" asks DEAN, a girl of 17 and senior in high school.

The boy she loves and has promised to marry is 21, and has left town after she promised to marry him in six months' time. He wanted her to marry him before he went to C. C. C. camp, but, as she was in school and she refused, (thank goodness), and compromised on six months hence.

She promised to be true to him and not go out with other boys, but she finds he is interested in her best girl friend; in his letters to Dean he swears he loves her—but the catch is that he writes the same to her girl friend. "Does he really mean to marry me?" asks Dean "I'm really in love with him."

Well, I hate to break your "pretty bubble of romance", dear Dean, but you can thank your lucky stars you had the good common sense to refuse to marry this youth before he went away. I don't believe he is really in love with you or he certainly wouldn't be writing and vowing his affection for your girl friend too.

It never is "safe" to love any one strongly. It puts a person at a great disadvantage, subject to all sorts of emotions—fear and rapture, jealousy and unreasonable anger—the heights and the depths, you see, Dean.

But we don't seem to be able to help ourselves. It is life that we should love and suffer, and we can't escape life and it wouldn't be good for us if we could.

However, you are a young girl, and should use the same good sense that made you refuse to marry this boy before he went away to direct you now. Why don't you and the girl friend get together and compare notes and let the boy know you're wise to his little game?

* * *

"DEAR MISS LEE: I have just finished reading a letter in your column signed 'Lonesome.'

"I will be 17 in a few months and am not allowed the privileges other fellows of my age enjoy, but that does not stop me from having a good time. My parents forbid me to go with girls, against which I rebel. Recently, however, I have been reasoning it out with them and they have relented a bit. So you see I am in just the sad category as Lonesome.

"My advice to this girl is to use her imagination, for I have found that imagination is one's best friend. You can have more adventure and excitement with imagination than anything else. A girl of 16 should not be such a pessimist as Lonesome is, however. There is always a brighter side of life.

"BOB."

True enough, Bob, and I presume Lonesome doesn't always feel as low as her letter sounded. You have a good system, so keep it and use it all through life.

* * *

MARJORIE: Maybe one of the boys who want you to go with him could persuade your father to let you go out with him occasionally. If not, your are growing rapidly older and will soon be old enough so that your father will give you more freedom.

HOROSCOPE

For Sunday, Dec. 12.

SUNDAY'S HOROSCOPE is a very important one, with social, intellectual, philanthropic and religious matters under excellent stimuli for growth and expression. Adventure and romance also figure, but in all there is need of discretion and a close curb on tongue and temper, as quarrels might undermine much constructive work and personal happiness. Be wise with writings and shun possible litigation.

Those whose birthday it is are on the threshold of a year of very important activities, with much growth, expansion and prosperity, if they will control quick and caustic speech, strife and careless writings, and shun litigation. The private associations promise adventure, romance and novel experience.

A child born on this day may be energetic, ambitious, quick and biting in speech, crafty in writings or contracts, but personally friendly, likeable, romantic, adventurous and fond of the unusual or experimental. Elders are its friends.

* * *

For Monday, Dec. 13.

MONDAY'S ASTROLOGICAL forecast is for a day of decided opportunity for growth, expansion, promotion and gain, both in business and employment. Secret elements or intriguing circumstances may figure; be wise in these. Seek promotion, favors from superiors and aim high, but with industry and sound plans and propositions. Emotional urges also seek expression.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of excellent promise for promotion, preferment, financial collaboration from high places, and worthwhile culminations for application, diligence and sound projects. The private and sentimental lives also have their gratifications. Secret matters call for discretion.

A child born on this day may be capable, industrious, steadfast and also proud, ambitious, and responsible. It will likewise be gentle, lovable and sentimental, attracting many friends.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

NOEL DID not hesitate at Mary's query, and his response was an unqualified bolstering of her assertion that they would both acquiesce in any plan I had for them. But there was a troubled look in his eyes which was not mirrored in those of his young wife, and I knew that the anticipation of his father's certain displeasure over the wrecked automobile clutch was weighing heavily upon him.

"Whatever you say is all right," he said tonelessly, and I leaned forward trying to put all the encouragement possible into my voice and face.

"All I ask of either of you," I began slowly, "is that you emulate the famous three little monkeys, and 'see nothing, hear nothing, speak nothing' for the next twenty-four hours, regardless of whatever surprising conversation you may hear on the telephone. Also I want you to 'choose your exit now'."

Mary, the irrepressible, threw a quick question at me.

"Do you mean we have to leave here for the rest of our stay?"

"Oh! no!" my mother-in-law protested, but Dicky, usually carping temporarily at any plan of mine, put up his hand with a quick imperative gesture.

Madge's Plan.

"Get off the track!" he told Mary with a grin. "The Lightning Express is coming."

He turned to me with the smile vanished and an expression in his eyes which apologized for the gibe.

"I think you have something," he said. "Is it something that can be told?"

"Yes," I returned "It's very simple. If Mr. Veritzen telephones, I'm going to make him believe you're not here, Noel, and if he comes down here, I want you to turn that belief into a certainty by vanishing. For that reason I want you to be sure that every item of your belongings is taken upstairs to your room, and I want you and Mary to decide now upon which seaside hotel around here you'd like to make your home for tomorrow if your father should make up his mind to come down here. I don't want to know the name of it, and I'm sure no one else does But I wish when you do decide you'd go up to my father's private telephone, call the hotel of your decision, and find out if you could get rooms on a few minutes' notice for a day, if you wish. You don't have to make formal reservations It's the end of the season and they're not so rushed as they were earlier."

Mary Thrilled.

I had been conscious all the time I was talking that Mary and Noel were leaning forward, gazing at me without somewhat the expression of sentenced prisoners listening to a reprieve Noel made no sound as I finished speaking, but Mary heaved a gusty, relieved sigh.

"You think of everything, Auntie Madge," she said admiringly "Wake up, Noel! Don't you see the responsibility's off our shoulders now. All we have to do is to obey orders and let our good fairy here do the rest. Come on, get busy and help me to take everything of ours up to our room. Then, after we've gone into a huddle over the hotel we like best, we'll get busy in Grandpa Spencer's room with his telephone. But I hope your father doesn't come after us. I'd rather stay here than anywhere else."

Prepare to Leave.

Her tone was wistful, and not for the first time I sent up a mental anathema against her father-in-law with his apparent malevolent machinations against her

Noel rose with her, but with a hand on his arm she propelled him toward the door, where he halted and spoke hesitatingly.

"Suppose," he said, "that my father should have decided to follow us down here and arrives tonight?"

"Then," I said smiling, "we will lock you up in my father's suite, smuggle your meals to you, and defy your father to find you."

The shrilling of the telephone punctuated my sentence, and I rushed to it, fearful of having Katie answer it.

"Dollars to doughnuts," Dicky said, "that's the great Veritzen now."

"Nothing Sacred."

A new type of newspaper reporter comes to the screen of the Ohio theater at midnight tonight in the person of Frederic March in "Nothing Sacred," with Carol Lombard. March is cast as a star reporter who chases his story in a silk hat and dress suit. The film, which opens at 11:30 tonight, is a hilarious comedy satire of Manhattan written by Ben Hecht. Practically all of the picture has New York for a background. The screen play, in technicolor, portrays Miss Lombard as a small town gal who is perpetrating a colossal hoax that turns New York inside out. Supporting the stars are Walter Connolly, Charles Winninger and Frank Fay. "This Way Please," with Charles "Buddy" Rogers, plays through today.

"It's Love I'm After."

"It's Love I'm After," a comedy-drama, co-starring Leslie Howard and Bette Davis, opens at the Madison theater Sunday. Howard is shown as a matinee idol—a stage star about whom all the town's young girls are ga-ga—and Miss Davis is his leading lady They love each other, but each is a scene-stealer, and they battle continuously in whispers while audiences hear them reciting lines aloud Olivia DeHavilland plays the part of a sentimental heiress who falls wildly in love with Howard. The balance of the story concerns itself with Howard when he tries to disillusion her and send her back into the arms of her lover. Bonita Granville, Patric Knowles and Eric Blore are in the cast.

"Adventure's End."

John Wayne and Diana Gibson head the cast of "Adventure's End," opening at the Majestic theater Sunday for two days. The film, adopted from a story by Ben Ames Williams, is a whaling tale of the southern seas in 1850. The plot deals with the cruise of an old whaling vessel. On the boat is a stowaway who falls in love with the daughter of the captain. The first mate is also in love with her, and the two become enemies. And then the stowaway buys a half interest in the ship and some pearls. The second feature will be "Prescription for Romance," with Wendy Barrie, Kent Taylor and Mischa Auer. "Riders of The Dawn," and "The Shadow," play through tonight.

* * *

"A Star Is Born."

Janet Gaynor and Frederic March return to the screen of a Mansfield theater Sunday in the return engagement in the technicolor production, "A Star Is Born," at the Ritz. The story concerns the adventures of a little country girl who went to Hollywood, faced the odds of 100,000 to 1, and scaled the heights to stardom. March is cast as the screen favorite on his way out as Miss Gaynor starts up. The two get married, but their private life is in a continuous up-roar. Others in the cast include Adolphe Menjou, May Robson, Andy Devine and Lionel Stander. Tex Ritter in "Riders of The Rockies," and "The Duke Comes Back," with Allen Lane, is the screen entertainment through today.

—Beauty—

Men Regain Vim Through Diet, Exercise

By GLADYS GLAD

"America's Most Famous Beauty"

BACK IN THE seventeenth century, I am told, that famous French philosopher, Descartes, used to weigh his total intake of food on finely balanced scales every day. This he did in order to keep a check on his daily diet.

Men, as a rule, need more nourishment than women because they use up more energy. But every man should be careful of his diet, nevertheless, and there are men who go on a diet one week out of every month, not to lose or gain weight, but to gain energy. Any man who works at the expense of nervous energy could do well to follow this example.

The average male has a weakness for spicy seasonings, such as chili sauce, ketchup, salt, pepper and like condiments, and these should be banned. Lemon juice gives just as much taste to foods and can be used on meats and vegetables for seasoning. It is a good idea also to banish sweets and starches, and eating between meals.

The diet recommended for men is a seven-day diet that is to be followed one week out of every month. The routine is as follows:

MONDAY—Breakfast: Honey Dew melon, toasted whole wheat muffin, coffee. Luncheon: Clear vegetable soup, chicken sandwich on rye toast—no butter, tea or coffee. Dinner: Celery, plain broiled lamb chops, broiled pineapple, lettuce and tomato salad—no dressing, tea or coffee.

TUESDAY—Breakfast: Mixed fruit cup, rye wafers, coffee or hot milk. Luncheon: Minute steak, sliced cucumbers and green peppers, stewed peaches, coffee. Dinner: Celery, tomato juice cocktail, chopped grilled steak, plain asparagus, tea or coffee.

WEDNESDAY — Breakfast: Sliced fresh pineapple mixed with fresh berries, one boiled egg, one slice Melba toast, tea or coffee. Luncheon: Chicken broth, mixed raw vegetable salad, slice rye toast, tea or coffee. Dinner: Broiled trout, mackerel or flounder, plain spinach, tomato and chicory salad, tea or coffee.

THURSDAY — Breakfast: Grapefruit, poached egg on whole wheat toast, coffee. Luncheon: Pineapple juice, unsweetened; crabmeat salad, coffee or tea. Dinner: Mixed vegetable juice cocktail, broiled liver, plain broccoli.

FRIDAY — Breakfast: Mixed grapefruit and orange quarters, Gluten toast, coffee. Luncheon: Lean roast beef, stewed tomatoes, string beans, endive salad, fresh fruit. Dinner: Clear broth, cottage cheese and sour cream, rye crackers, coffee.

SATURDAY—Breakfast: Baked apple with milk, coffee or tea. Luncheon: Carrot cocktail, two poached eggs with spinach, rye toast. Dinner: Broiled chicken, carrots, boiled cabbage, stewed tomatoes; fresh fruit for dessert.

SUNDAY—Breakfast: Half cantaloupe, fruited bran muffin, light coffee. Luncheon: Melted cheese sandwich on rye toast, fruit compote, tea or coffee. Dinner: Mixed grill (lamb chop, kidney, mushrooms), coleslaw, melba toast, sliced oranges.

Try this diet one week out of every month, boys, if you are inclined to corpulence or to extreme thinness. For you'll find that it will not only help to improve your build, but will also increase your energy and vitality.

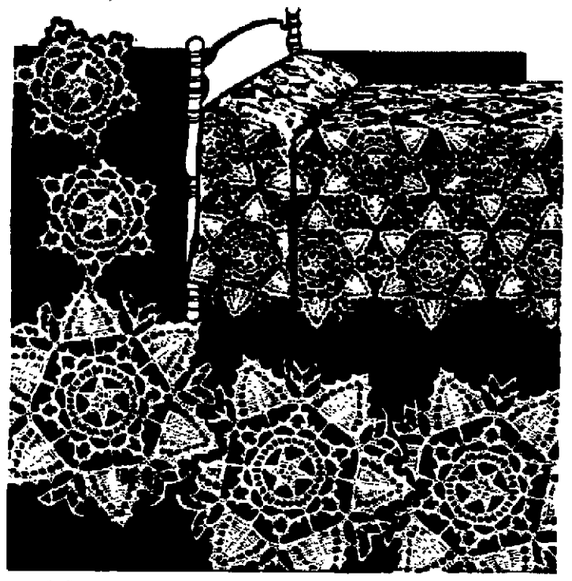
PIQUANT MEAT LOAF—Two pounds ground beef, one-half pound chopped bologna, one cup moist cracker or bread crumbs, one cup chili sauce, one tablespoon grated onion, two eggs, slightly beaten; salt and pepper, slices of American cheese. Have beef and bologna ground together. Add the cracker or bread crumbs, grated onion, slightly beaten egg and chili sauce Season with salt and pepper and pack into a loaf pan Over the top lay thin slices of American cheese. Bake in a slow oven (35 degrees F.) until done, about one hour.

Simplicity Jam — Two cups apples, three cups sugar, one cup crushed pineapple, one-fourth cup commercial pectin. Peel and core apples and chop fine. Add sugar and pineapple. Boil vigorously for five minutes. Remove from fire and add commercial pectin. Put in small jars. Can be used for tarts, etc.

Discourage Moisture.

Moisture in the refrigrator encourages the growth of bacteria, causing food to spoil Wipe off all moisture inside the refrigerator and be careful to remove spilled foods.

STAR DESIGN FOR SPREAD



CROCHETED MEDALLIONS PATTERN 1464

By LAURA WHEELER

Like a luxurious-looking spread of lacy transparency. Here it is, and it's almost unbelievable that so rich a design is crocheted of humble string. The large medallions (8¾ inches) are done singly and joined for spread or cloth; smaller matching "star" medallions (4½ inches) work up even faster for scarfs, chair or buffet sets. Here's beauty that really endures! Pattern 1464 contains complete directions for making the medallions shown; illustrations of them and of stitches used; material requirements; a photograph of the medallions.

Send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) for this pattern to Mansfield News-Journal, Needlecraft Dept., 82 Eighth Avenue, New York, N. Y. Write plainly PATTERN NUMBER, your NAME and ADDRESS.

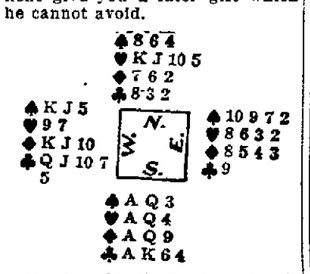
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

INVITING A GIFT

IT IS A MISTAKE to be in there trying to take a trick every time you lead. Your job is sometimes to throw away a trick or two, or perhaps three tricks in a row, in order to make an opponent give you a later gift which he cannot avoid.



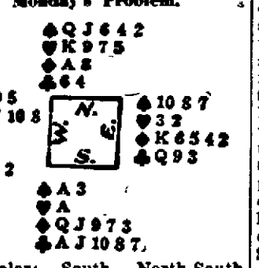
(Dealer: North. East-West vulnerable.)

After an opening bid of 2-No Trumps on this deal, North took the contract to three and West started the defense by leading the club Q.

South decided to allow this to hold and hoped West would switch, but the suit was repeated and South went in with the K. Four heart tricks were now cashed. Declarer then pondered over which finesse to take and decided on spades West led another club, which South won, but he still had to give up a diamond and failed to make the contract.

North was justified in his criticism of the way his partner handled the situation. With a holding such as his, and reading West for five clubs originally, he should not have tried either finesse. His job was to force West to lead into either of his tenaces and this he could have done by cashing his four hearts and then his club A and giving three club tricks to West. It would not have mattered then where the kings of the other suits were situated, as the lead would have been up to the South hand.

Monday's Problem.



(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

What is the correct bidding of this deal?

Convenient Height.

Wall outlets for electrical devices used in the kitchen, pantry or butler's pantry should be placed at table height. This permits the use of shorter cords with cooking utensils, eliminating coils that are likely to get in the housewife's way.

Celery should be cooked slowly. It is a fibrous vegetable and toughens if cooked quickly.

Double-Decker Date Whip—One package orange gelatin, one cup boiling water, one-fourth cup chopped nuts, one cup orange juice or water, one-fourth package pasteurized dates. Dissolve gelatin in boiling water; add orange juice or cold water. Cool until the mixture begins to thicken; pour half the mixture into stemmed serving glasses; cover with the sliced dates and nuts; set in a cold place. Cool the remainder of the gelatin until partially set; beat with a rotary beater until fluffy. Pour the whipped jelly over the clear mixture containing dates and nuts. Chill until firm. Serve with whipped cream garnished with a slice of orange and a bit of date. Use half lemon gelatin and half orange gelatin for color contrast. Serves four.
